BORAH IS DRY'S' PRESIDENTIAL HOPE

DEMANDS PARTY BACK CAUSE THAT THE ISSUE MAY BE MET

The Senator From Idaho Says In Regard To the Liquor Question, the Republicans Must Stand Behind the Amendment—He Condemns Practice of "Insipid Law and Order Plank" In Party Platforms—No Side-stepping—Looks Like Lawmaker Intends To Enter the Race For President.

Declaring prohibition still is "very much of an issue," Senator Borah announced at Washington Monday his intention to call upon the national political parties to take a definite stand on law enforcement in the presidential campaign next year.

He will speak before the New York women's committee for law enforcement which, at his suggestion, is prepared to compel "if possible, a definite stand upon the matter" by both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Senator Borah, who is mentioned as a possible Republican presidential candidate, declared in a letter to the organization, made public Monday, that "it is clear that both political parties propose to avoid anything in the way of a commitment to the upholding and maintaining of the constitution of the United States, except perhaps an insipid, meaningless generality to the effect that they believe in law and order."

"They might just as well say under the present circumstances that they believe in the ten commandments. Here is a definite and extraordinary situation. The constitution is being deliberately defied. And there are those who say it is right and proper to defy it, and thru organized public opinion to nullify it."

"If political parties are unwilling to meet that issue, if when the constitution of the United States is definitely challenged political expediency withholds support, it must be apparent to all that those who are opposed to the constitution have won out."

Mayor John W. Smith a candidate for reelection as Detroit's chief executive, Monday issued a statement to the Associated Press unequivocally indorsing earlier statements attributed to him opposing enforcement of the national prohibition law.

"I am a wet, and do not believe any sane or sensible person believes the prohibition law can be enforced in great cities like Detroit, Chicago or New York," he said. "It is about time the people of the United States realize that any attempt to enforce the prohibition law in any city will result on the breeding of hypocrisy, corruption of the police department and the employment of the meanest tactics. The whole thing is the rankest sort of a joke.

"If an attempt was made in Detroit to enforce the law it would result in the employment of snoopers, who would go around peering in their neighbor's windows where much of the drinking is going on. The whole law is the rottenest hypocrisy. The very men who are sitting in with the Anti-Saloon League leaders and seeking their support, are drinking in their private clubs or homes.

"Enforcement of the law merely means the destruction of the effectiveness of the police department forced to turn their attention from elimination of major crime to the development of a bunch of window peepers and snoopers."

Mayor Smith is opposed in the election of November 8, by John C. Lodge, former president of the Detroit city council, who resigned from that position to become a mayoralty candidate after a petition bearing 50,000 names had been presented to him.

Lodge has made no campaign speeches or promises.

PUMPKIN SHOW WRECK.

A load of pumpkins being brought to the big show was wrecked Tuesday morning at Stevenson's crossing when the axle of the wagon broke. The northbound 8:10 traction car was delayed fifteen minutes before the wreck was cleared.

THE MARSHALL LAW FAVORED IN COUNTY

Fight on the Marshall bill has developed into a contest between the wet and dry voters of the state. Church organizations generally have gone on record in favor of the measure, the Anti-Saloon League is taking an active part in the fight for its approval, while the Grange organizations of the state always aligned with the temperate vote, is doing what it can for the voters approval. On the other hand, every agency which has been with the wet interests in previous fights are against the bill and it is said that large amounts of money will be expended to defeat the measure. Rural voters are pretty well convinced of the fact that justices of the peace should not be limited to larger cities where they have ample police protection, but should be extended to the smaller villages and precincts where the constables working out of the justice's court are the only police officials to run down bootleggers, speeders and other violators of the law. There isn't near the following against the bill as some wet leaders would make you believe.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Canton—Judges Farr, Pollmck and Roberts of the Youngstown district court of appeals had under advisement today the appeal of Saramus A. Lengel for a new trial.

St. Clairsville—Ten prisoners escaped from the Belmont county jail early today. The break occurred about 2 a. m., in the opinion of Sheriff Hardesty who discovered the prisoners absent when he went to feed them this morning. The men sawed the bars on a second floor window, broke the glass and lowered themselves to the ground with the aid of bed clothing.

Cincinnati—A formal plea of insanity, the defense of George Remus, former king of bootleggers, in the murder of his wife, Mrs. Imogene Remus, October 6, was to be filed today with Judge Chester R. Shooks, criminal court.

Columbus—Held in jail here on a petit larceny charge, Ray Miller, 23, tried to hang himself in his cell last night. He was discovered and cut down by a fellow prisoner.

New Philadelphia—John T. Edgar clay worker has filed a suit for $15,000 damages against H. J. Bittikoff, village marshal, claiming his character had been defamed by the marshal's alleged reference to him as a "chicken thief."

Cleveland—Traffic fatalities were increased to 158 here for the year with the death of Alban Rutledge, who was run down by an automobile.

Not Appreciated

Jersey City, N. J.—Because she made her own clothes and neither smoked nor drank, Mrs. Ida Wagner declares her husband, George P. Wagner, jeered at her for not being "modern" and finally deserted her.

Germs' Spread Feared: Ex-Hospital to Burn

Edmonton, England.—A disused hospital in the populous downtown district here has been ordered burnt by the city health authorities, who fear that if the structure were razed in any other way germs might escape. About twenty-five years ago a smallpox epidemic raged here and since then the hospital has been used as a storage place for lumber.

Health officers said that if the building was pulled down germs might escape through the wood joints.

Mrs. Sarah McCrea Delaplane, wife of Edward Delaplane, of Cleveland, formerly of this city, is remembered in the will of Mrs. Mary M. Emery, of Cincinnati, who died last week. She receives an annuity of $2,000.

Among others remembered handsomely in the will are her secretary, Charles L. Livingood, and her sister Miss Isabelle F. Hopkins, of Cincinnati, who receive a half million dollars each. Mr. Livingood visited this city when Mrs. Emery gave the parish house to St. Philip's church. Mrs. Emery's parents are buried in Forest cemetery.

She left a fortune of $25,000,000.

SALEM UNION HAD MEETING OCTOBER 11

Will Visit Circleville At the Home of Mrs. Gussman On Last Friday This Month.

The Salem W. C. T. U. met at the home of President Mary Harpster, Tuesday afternoon, October 11, at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Louise Morris, the second vice president, presided at the opening of the meeting, which was opened by singing The White Ribbon Rally song.

Mrs. Val Valentine, of the Tarlton Union, conducted the devotionals, reading the scripture lesson and leading in prayer, all joining in the Lord's prayer. After singing "Some Glad Day," the roll was called, followed by the reading of the minutes of the September meeting.

Miss Harpster presided at the business session. The date of the meeting day was changed from the second Thursday of each month to the first Thursday of the month. It was also decided to have new calendars printed for the year. The president of the Circleville Union, Mrs. Lulu Marion, invited the Salem Union to meet with them at the home of Mrs. Gussman the last Friday evening of this month.

The Pickaway county president, Mrs. Lucy B. Price, was present and gave a fine talk; also Mrs. Abbie Gussman, Mrs. Bessie Long and Mrs. Ella Milligan gave very interesting talks concerning their work.

After a song on the victrola, "Can the World See Jesus in You?" Mrs. Anna Rice closed the meeting with a prayer.

The Union will meet at the home of Mrs. Louise Morris the first Thursday in November.

During the social hour Miss Harpster assisted by Mrs. D. W. Allen, served ice cream with chocolate dope cake and coffee.

Visitors were Mrs. Val Valentine and Mrs. George Gill from the Tarlton Union; Mrs. Lucy B. Price, county president; Mrs. Lulu Marion, Circleville, president; Mrs. Abbie Gussman, Mrs. Bessie Long, Mrs. Edith Marion and Mrs. Ella Milligan from the Circleville Union, and Miss Ada Machir, Mrs. Alice Brundige and Mrs. E. W. Hatcher, of Kingston.

CHANGE OF LOCATION

Owing to the fact that there is not enough room at the court house T. D. Krinn, amusement director, has changed the high dive act to East High street, near the corner of Court.

PUMPKIN SHOW IS A KNOCKING AT YOUR DOOR

The 1927 Annual Exhibit Is Here, Bigger and Better ---Look Me Over.

Columbus, Portsmouth, Lancaster and Washington C. H., newspapers are telling their readers that Circleville will stage one of the grandest fall festivals the last four days of this week.

Not only Circleville, but the whole county of Pickaway, is giving this annual show. Ever since 1902, the event has been celebrated, with the exception of the year we declared war on the Teutonic nation, so the institution is a quarter of a century old.

The directors this year have left nothing to chance, but have made extraordinary efforts to make this year's show even better than its predecessors, and are offering greater prizes in all sections.

The time of giving Pumpkin shows in the county seat of the greatest agricultural county in the state, was fixed in the third week of October for more reasons than one. Farmers are thru seeding, corn crop is garnered, and lastly the pumpkin is ripe enough to take off the vine. It is the time when the farmer and his family after a hard season's work, wants to come to town and see what his neighbor has raised, and have a good time. Other towns have had their fling of entertaining by giving fairs, and they are not jealous of our famous institution, but are glad to help it along, and tell their people to go to Roundtown and see the greatest display of farm produce that the eye has rested on in many decades.

It is the time of the year when all nature assists in painting with an artist's brush the glories of the woods. The frost fairies have been at work, the flaming red sumach has made its appearance and in its Tyrian glory. It outranks all the splendor of the artistically painted leaves of the shade trees, in the fields, yellow goldenrod in bursting rockets vie with the cardinal spires of sumach, biding flaming defiance to the dying sun. Its robes catch the reflection of the sunset fires. The autumn sweeps onward, winter will soon be with us and the Pumpkin Show is the last outing before the mantle of white covers the green. Wistfully our song birds gave a parting look to the loveliness of the colors of cardinal and gold, that cover the hillside. It's the time when nature seems at her best, the four footed denizens of the forest, have gathered in their stores for the bleak and dreary winter. Even their holidays have begun and it's your vacation time. Come in and see what the other farmer has raised and maybe it will urge you on to raise better grain hogs or cattle. Bring the boys and girls for it's their show as well as yours.

There will all kinds of amusements both free and paid. The admission to the big show is as free as the air and if you have a baby that is good looking, enter it in the parade. There are enough prizes to go around.

Bring in some corn, wheat, vegetables or fruit of the orchard and you may win. The girls may have some good looking preserves or jellies, or some fine cake or butter that may win a prize. You have just as good a chance to carry home the bacon as the other fellow, but you must enter to win. If you have a freak of nature, fetch it for there's a class for these things and it is interesting. Do not let this Pumpkin Show go by without bringing in something for exhibition.

The pride of your county, is the Pumpkin Show of Pickaway.

It gives a man a feeling of superiority to compare himself with his wife's relatives.

KLAN FLAILED
By Alabama Jury Which Indicts 45 Persons In Masked Floggings.

Luverne, Ala., Oct. 15.—Inquiry into masked violence and the workings of the Ku Klux Klan by a special grand jury ended late today with 102 indictments against 45 men charged with complicity in 20 or more lashings in Greenshow County.

The grand jury also made sweeping charges that men high in the councils of the "invisible empire" were "unworthy of trust."

All indictments except one were against members of the Ku Klux Klan, and the jury, which passed a week in the inquiry, reported that with one exception all the masked lashings were committed by members of the Klan, wearing hoods and robes of the order.

DAN GARRETT
A YEAR OLD

One year ago, Friday night, Chillicothe was petrified with horror by the cold-blooded murder of Officer Dan Garrett. One year ago today, Montrose and John Hickman, Garrett's murderers, were hiding in a cornfield near Kilgore bridge, and evaded an organized man hunt which had been in progress over night.

Garrett was shot down on East Main street by one of two men he had accosted and was in the act of searching.

The crime was fixed on the Hickman brothers through an automobile left at the scene and through the arrest of two girl companions.

They were captured in November at Point Pleasant, West Virginia, returned to Chillicothe and given speedy trials and convicted. John of first degree murder and sentenced to death and Montrose, of second degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment at Ohio penitentiary. John Hickman was electrocuted in June after his attorneys, Day and Rais, had exhausted all legal methods of saving him from the electric chair.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

WILD TURKEY
And Deer May Again Roam Ohio Forests.

A new plan will be inaugurated in the propagation of wild turkeys at the Roosevelt preserve next year. The young turkeys will be distributed to the counties where the territory is deemed adaptable and it is hoped that they will flourish and in time permit a real hunting season for the big birds.

Ten new shelter houses for the fur bearers are now being built at the preserve, making 20 in all. Additional cages and shelter for pheasants are also being put up for the winter with about 30-foot runways.

Chief D. O. Thompson of the state fish and game division will purchase 200 head of deer to be placed in a 640 acre tract at the Roosevelt preserve in Scioto county as soon as it is fenced in with a strong wire fence nine feet high, bids for which are now being received.

The scheme for the propagation of deer is one of the most extensive ever attempted in the country and its outcome will be watched with great interest by sportsmen all over the country.

The animals will be allowed to run wild and every effort will be made not to disturb them in any way.

The section is well watered and is covered with a dense growth of forest trees and there are many open spaces for pasture.

Gets Rid of Straw Hat, but It Takes a Fire
Chicago.—Peter J. Murray of the Valcgen apartment, in Edgewater, bought a cap, and on the way home in a cab tossed his old straw hat out of the cab window. The lights were against him and a boy came rushing up. "Your hat, sir." He gave the boy a quarter.

His wife didn't like the cap, so he put it in his pocket and wore the straw hat. Crossing the river he tossed the hat in. He went home to find a squad of police at the door, bearing the hat, and his wife on the verge of hysteria in fear he had committed suicide.

The police found it hard to believe that a man who takes the trouble to write his name in a straw hat might not, on occasions, be expected to kill himself.

In an ecstasy of wrath Murray later tossed the hat out through an open window. It sailed across the court and in through another open window.

Thomas Gordon came home and found a straw hat on the floor of his home. Inside the hat he found the name of Mr. Murray.

"What were you doing in my flat?" demanded Gordon.

Murray rose up and knocked him down. The police came.

Gordon left an unnoticed cigarette smoldering on a rug. When he and Mr. Murray returned from the police station there wasn't any flat. Fire had obliterated it. The straw hat was gone, too.

Outfit That Adds Smart
Note to Week-End Duds

When traveling one should always be supplied with suitable clothes. Kathi Barr, the motion picture actress, wears an outfit that adds a smart note to the week-end appearance. It consists of a box-plaited rose and gray plaid skirt, sweater of rose trimmed with the plaid material, a crape of rose trimmed in plaid and a turban of black that is close-fitting and comfortable for traveling.

Things to Know About
Peltry and Fur Coats

The woman who can have only one fur coat must choose that one carefully. If the large outlay is to be a wise investment. The following facts have been compiled to aid those who are now buying their winter wraps:

Russian Pony—Coarse-haired Russian pony is good for sports wear and wears quite well. Flat Russian pony is smart, but does not wear so well.

Raccoon—Good wearing fur and popular for sports wear.

Beaver—Beautiful and wears well. Suitable for sports or dress wear.

Caracul Kid and Caracul—Used mostly for dress wear since they do not wear as well as the harder furs.

Persian Lamb—Handsome, good wearing fur for every day as well as dress wear.

Squirrel—Suited to dress wear, but not for hard usage.

Mink—An all round fur. Durable and beautiful.

Leopard—Used extensively for sports or dress and wears excellently. The cheap imitations are not recommended.

Muskrat—Good for sports or dress and wears well.

Nutria—Resembles beaver and is quite durable.

Dyed Rabbit—Good for dress or sports wear, but does not stand hard, long usage.

Calfskin—Used for dress and sports wear, but is not as durable as it looks to be.

The other furs can be grouped under suitable heads:

For long, hard wear—Otter, beaver, Alaska seal, mink, skunk, fisher, racoon, krimmer, Persian lamb, natural muskrat, dyed muskrat, Russian sable, kolinsky and leopard.

For dress wear—Ermine, martin fox, natural or dyed squirrel, silver muskrat, nutria, American broadtail, caracul, caracul kid and rabbit.

For grace and beauty, solely—Broadtail, chinchilla or mole.

Where low price is the inciting factor—Marmot or rabbit.

For sports wear—Raccoon, natural muskrat, leopard, beaver, ocelot, elvel cat, opossum, pony, fidskin and rabbit.

Silks Must Have Weight
to Hang Effectively

Silks this fall must hang. And in order to hang effectively they must have weight. The silkworm may or may not produce this poundage. If one pays the price one may obtain a soft, heavy natural silk. If one does not care to pay the price and if wear is not a dominant factor, metal filling provides the weight. The heavier silk ribbons almost resemble crepe marocain.

Fine Feathers Always
Much Admired by Women

Fine feathers seem never to lose their attraction for the feminine taste. One of the newest ways of wearing ostrich plumes is in the form of a wide flat scarf of natural ostrich. This is almost as voluminous as a shawl and should by no means be confused with the ostrich feather bon, which is in no ways resembles. It is intended entirely for evening wear.

Aviation and Leather Coats

Perhaps the intense interest in aviation is having a bearing on fashion. At least the chrome leather coats seem likely to be popular for fall, both for outdoor athletic spectacles and for motoring. They are made with that kasha lining and closely resemble the garments adopted by aviators.

Split Back

A brown zibeline broadcloth coat has a bolero erpe back that is split as far up as the yoke line and shows its beige silk lining as its wearer

PUMPKIN DISPLAY

The square between Pinckney and High streets on Court, will be given over to the display of pumpkins and squashes. The display will extend to both sides of the street and R. L. Brehmer, chairman of this display, promises that every pumpkin, squash or freak vegetable brought in will be displayed. A new item on the premium list this year is the freak vegetables and very generous prizes have been awarded. The prize for the largest display of pumpkins and squashes has been raised this year to $50 in order to remunerate the owner for his work of getting the display to the show. Another item of interest to the exhibitor is that of a separate display and separate premium award for the crooked-neck squash, which heretofore has not received much attention. oct17d3.

PUMPKIN SHOW NOTES

H. B. Colwell, chairman of the section containing jellies and canned goods for the Pumpkin Shows, calls attention to the change of awards in this section which are now made for the largest and best display of Jellies, Fruits and Vegetables. This display will be on exhibit on West Main street in front of Mr. Colwell's store. 10 15 2

FANCY WORK

Mrs. E. S. Stephens and Mrs. Harvey Valentine are chairmen of this department and wish to announce that the display this year will be in the room in North Court street formerly occupied by the Circleville Hardware Co. All entries in this department must be made not later than Thursday noon and the chairmen and their assistants prefer to have them in on Wednesday evening which would give them an opportunity to display them to advantage. An additional prize for hand painting and tinting is offered this year. Also splendid premiums for work by girls under 18 years of age and another for girls under 12 years of age. Mrs. F. H. Palm, Mrs. O. F. Heffner and Mrs. E. L. Sullivan are the assistants. oct17d3.

Potash Search in U. S.

Yields Good Results

Washington.—First tests by experts of the Commerce and Interior departments to determine the extent of potash deposits in the United States show encouraging results. In the face of certain handicaps, though the beds encountered "are probably not rich enough to have present commercial value," the Interior department announced.

The tests were undertaken under the $100,000 appropriation to investigate domestic potash-bearing lands with a view to making this country less dependent on foreign potash and the first core drilling operation took place on public land in Eddy county, New Mexico.

About 50 beds or groups of beds containing 2 per cent or more of potash were found between depths of 838 to 1,770 feet, it was said. The hole was 1,847 feet. Fourteen beds ranged in thickness from 1 inch to 6 feet 2 inches, and in potash content from 3.10 to 16.47 per cent.

Diphtheria Hits at Adults

"There is no reason why there should not come a time when we can throw all our diphtheria signs into the waste basket," says Health Commissioner Henry F. Vaughan of Detroit.

As Doctor Vaughan reiterated, everyone can be immunized against diphtheria. It is just a reasonable, ordinary precaution to be so immunized. Most adults exercise their arbitrary authority to have their children inoculated. But adults say: "Oh, that's a child's disease, I won't get it."

They are wrong, but inquire among your friends and see how many have been inoculated.—Detroit News.

MOVE SAVES GAME ANIMALS IN NORTH

Trappers and hunters in the country adjacent to Mount McKinley National park, Alaska, report an excellent year. Wild animals have been plentiful, due to the overflow from the park, which is an absolute game sanctuary and serves as the breeding ground for large herds of caribou and bighorn sheep, moose and deer. As always happens in a new country, the animal life and other natural resources of Alaska for a time seemed unbounded, and prospectors, miners, trappers and other travelers in the Far North killed the game in great numbers, with no thought of conservation. Finally, people interested in the propagation of American big game animals realized that unless something was done to stop the wanton killing of the caribou and mountain sheep of Alaska, these animals would be in as precarious a condition as were buffalo and antelope a few years earlier. It was especially important that some action be taken before the completion of the Alaska railroad brought increasing numbers of travelers and settlers to the region. So in 1917 the Mount McKinley National park was created and a new lease of life was given the game herds of the region.

PREFERS SEA TO COMMONS SEAT

Sir Guy Gaunt, British Vice Admiral, Lives on "Floating Flat."

San Juan, P. R.—From the house of commons, London, to Cocos Island, some hundreds of miles off the coast of Panama in the Pacific, is two thousand miles or so, but Cocos beats commons. In the opinion of Vice Admiral Sir Guy Gaunt, Cocos, in fact, is about the nearest thing to paradise on this earth. If you want to take Sir Guy's word for it, writes Harwood Hall, in the Chicago Tribune.

And Sir Guy has seen enough of this world to know and form his own opinions. Having been at sea much of his life, it was to the sea he turned for rest after years of war strain and when he found that being a member of parliament wasn't exactly a holiday.

For almost two years now he has been at sea on a remodeled lumber schooner which he has rechristened Four Winds. He calls it his floating flat. He is still at sea and may be indefinitely.

Has Chinese Crew.

Starting from Puget sound early in 1923 Sir Guy headed down the Pacific coast. With a Chinese crew he has been much of the time on his 500-ton schooner. He is his own skipper and navigator. Eventually he sailed to Cocos Island, about 209 miles west of Panama. There he lingered many months and although he has sailed all the seas and visited most of the known places on the globe, Cocos seems to hold the greatest fascination.

"I wish Gaunt was British ambassador," So Col. E. M. House wrote back in 1916. Of Capt. Guy R. Gaunt, naval attaché at the British embassy, Washington, according to his "intimate papers."

The Captain Gaunt of whom Colonel House then wrote is now Sir Guy Gaunt, a vice admiral, scarce past fifty and retired these ten years. Instead of commanding a fleet he spends most of his time on his "floating flat."

When it was a schooner it was named the Eric. Sir Guy bought her at Vancouver, cabled his secretary to dismantle his London flat and send out his belongings. He then started in to remodel the schooner, building his floating flat to accommodate his belongings and treasures. For weeks at a time he is the only white man aboard the Four Winds. At other times he has guests a plenty.

For almost two years Sir Guy has been sailing before the four winds. Coming through the canal, most of the last winter and spring he spent in the West Indies and Central American ports. In May and June he visited Porto Rico, sailing from San Juan for Havana to dry dock before going on to Venice.

He has not written his memoirs; he says they couldn't be published, not for 50 years. But Ambassador Page and Colonel House speak of him in their memoirs and rate his activities most highly. As "Poor Old Gaunt," he is known to intimates, at least, as "Pog."

After the war Sir Guy was in the house of commons.

Goes to China for Crew.

Sir Guy has a crew of 23 Chinese, and he went all the way to China to get them. The Four Winds is a 500-ton vessel, 174 feet over all and 23 feet beam. "Something substantial under your feet, don't you know," he says. He has installed electric lights, running hot and cold water, an ice plant, built in four bedrooms 18 by 18 feet, installed four baths, and provided most of the comforts and refinements one would find in an exclusive apartment. In the lounge is a large fireplace and below in the hold there are several cords of firewood.

Sir Guy has collected many birds and has them in a special compartment which he has screened off from one end of the lounge. Other pets are about the schooner, including a Mexican squirrel.

Out on deck and lashed securely under a heavy tarpaulin is a motor which, when Sir Guy puts in port, can be swung off the ship. One of his Chinamen puts on chauffeur's livery, and there you are.

The Four Winds goes under sail most of the time, but there are two engines that will give her seven knots an hour. There is storage for 25,000 gallons of fuel and the engines use about a gallon a mile.

Fishing in the Northwest, hunting wherever game may be, a few days ashore for a little golf or motoring, then on to another port—Sir Guy seems to have no more of a schedule than that. Except, now, his most definite objective is Venice this fall.

Running away from home in Australia at ten, Sir Guy was in the British merchant service before he entered the royal navy. He sailed out of Liverpool on merchantmen and was a second mate at eighteen. His rise in the navy was rapid. In Samoa in 1899 he hoisted the American flag after it had been lowered supposedly by rebels. He was advanced for that.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Miss Sadie Hoover delightfully entertained to dinner last Wednesday at her home in Darbyville. The tables were artistically decorated with fall flowers. Covers were laid for the following guests: Miss Alice Morrow, Mrs. Charles Niles, Mrs. Charles Rife, Mrs. William Murray, Mrs. Edward Lilly, Mrs. John Neff, Mrs. Clara Tedrick, Mrs. Clarence Curtin, Mrs. Ralph Curtin and Mrs. Lee Shaner of Circleville; Mrs. Thomas Shepherd, Mrs. J. R. Hott and Mrs. George Ishman, of near Ashville; Mrs. George Bockard and daughter, Carolyn, of near Williamsport; Mrs. Joseph Hill, of Orient and Mrs. J. M. Grabill of Darbyville.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zehrung, of Tarlton, was a scene of lively activity Sunday when a large number of schoolmates and acquaintances met and in friendly converse revealed the scenes of earlier school days which binds them so closely together. A delicious oyster dinner was served at the noon hour together with other refreshments. The afternoon was spent in social converse and renewing of old friendships. They departed wishing for many more reunions in the future this being the fifth for this year. Those present were: Mrs. Marcus Will and son, Mrs. Anna Fortner, Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Warner, Elmer Helvering, Mrs. Mary Mallow, Miss Emma Stout, Circleville; Miss Lucile Aldenderfer, Tarlton; Mr. and Mrs. Orman Bright Jr., Mr. and Mrs. F. What may the engaged man give to his fiancée?

THE WHAT, WHEN AND HOW OF REMEMBRANCES... DON'T GUESS—ASK YOUR JEWELER

An engagement ring, of course! But what else, during the engagement period may an engaged man give to his fiancée —with propriety and good taste?

This is one of the many puzzling problems in the delicate and intricate art of proper gift-giving.

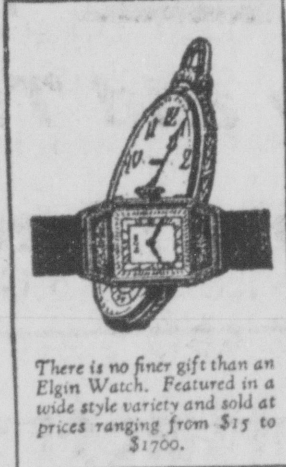

Certain kinds of gifts, including all forms of jewelry, the engaged man may bestow upon his bride-to-be as freely as his means and wishessanction. Other types of gifts, such as wearing apparel or furniture, he cannot give at all, without breaching the canons of approved social practice and good form.

But there are other equally perplexing questions in the etiquette of gift-giving. What, for example, should a bridegroom give to his best man and ushers before the wedding ceremony?

And the bride to her brides-maids? What are the proper anniversaries and seasonal gifts to friends and relatives?

When you have a delicate gift problem to solve—don't guess—go to an expert for authoritative counsel. See your jeweler. He is past-master in the science of gift selection. His consultations are free.

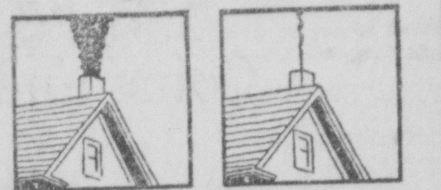

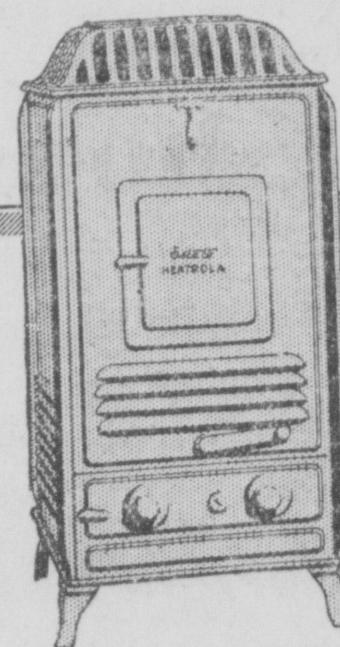

There is no finer gift than an Elgin Watch. Featured in a wide style variety and sold at prices ranging from $15 to $1700.

THE PAPER FROM HOME
When I packed by portmanteau I said I am sick of everyday grind; Of dissension and scandal and blame; And I'm going to leave them behind,
For a month I'll forget there is aught
Save harmony under God's dome; But I find that I can't eat or sleep If I don't get the paper from home.

The best minds have commended, I said,
All the books I am taking to read; There's biography, fiction and verse; With a pipe they'll be all that I need.
But I sit without turning a page Of the likeliest quarto or tome.
And there's no joy at all in a smoke If I don't get the paper from home.

Tho the sky may be cloudless, the surf In all ways is best for a swim; Tho a new friend I've found makes me feel
That I mean something real to him And another new friend snuggles close
On the beach in the gathering gloam
True an truth, bo, the day is a dud When I don't get the paper from home, —Edward W. Barnes in New York Times.

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

Folksburg is in the middle of a cool snap at the present writing, and it's been sort of trying these last few mornings getting out at daylight and feeling the sudden rush of frosty air thru your summer clothes. And personally what we can't understand is our lack of foresight that we didn't buy us an overcoat last spring when they were marked down to where we had the money.

Howard Evans tried to build a fire in his furnace yesterday morning, but when he found it was full of old tin cans where Mrs. Evans had disposed of them during the summer, why he got his hat and went off talking a good deal to himself.

Simon Sloan got a report last week from the examination he took a while ago for a postoffice job, and right away several began to ask did he make it and what grade did he get. And his grade was so low, that while his conscience kept him truthful, he told it like he meant it for a joke, and hoped people wouldn't believe him.

Some strangers were in town yesterday looking for Will Deal, one of our realtors, and for a while it looked like he couldn't be found. But they were advised to drive around slow for a spell and act like they were looking at property, and if Will was here anywhere he'd soon be up introducing himself. And they found him that way.

Mrs. Millie Hicks has been working for two or three weeks on a bed comforter she meant to give one of her nieces that got married recently. But since it's finished it looks so much nicer than she expected, that she's trying now to think of something else she can give the young couple.

Frank Pertle, who runs one of our stores, says that with the way automobiles and the like are being sold these days, it's come to be second nature with people to want to trade in their old things whenever they buy something new. As for instance, he said a certain party that bought a pair of shoes the other day wanted to know would his old shoes be worth anything on the deal.

Billy boy, the four year old son of Tom Riley, came in a day or two ago tolerably proud of some new words he'd learned from the bigger boys. But he didn't get to use them only once, and he got such painful action out of them that he saw he'd made a serious mistake of some kind.

Cyrus Blake, who left Folksburg several years ago, was in town last week driving a fine automobile and otherwise bearing the marks of being prosperous. His friends used to sort of feel sorry for him thinking he'd never rate very high and seemed like it gave him a good deal of satisfaction to come back and show them where they'd guessed wrong.

Alec Powers has mislaid the key to a drawer where he keeps some of his important things. His wife urged him to start in and hunt until he found it, but he said no, that instead of getting all stirred up, he'd just take it calm until he runs across it in the natural course of things.

Uncle Bill Bobbitt was talking recently that surely people don't watch little things as close as they used to. And he illustrated his remarks by saying that you don't hardly ever hear any more of a hired girl being fired because her potato peelings are too thick.

One of Miss Mabel Young's friends has been taking considerable pains to show that he is out of humor by not speaking to her for several days. But his conduct hasn't seemed to bother her very much, and she says when he goes to all that trouble, why he surely is deeply interested.

Andy Dobbins spent a good while Saturday night looking for Nath Atkins. And he finally crossed the scent of Nath's pipe on Mulberry street and followed the trail around until he overtook Nath.

Increased Demand for Yankee "Hooked Rugs"
The demand for American hooked rugs of the better kind not only keeps up but seems to increase. By American is meant Yankee rugs, not those which are imported from Canada, chiefly Nova Scotia, but those which the patient housewives of New England hooked a century ago or more. Some of these have real beauty in their colorings and patterns, and the years have softened and toned down any crudities of tint that may have been originally worked into them so that they harmonize definitely and unobtrusively in a decorative scheme.

There is something most attractive about a hooked rug, for it symbolizes the patience and the conscientiousness and the effort to bring about beauty that are part of the American heritage of character and used as part of the decorations of a modern home they bring into it an element that is none too plenty in the turmoil of this life of the Twentieth century.—The Antiquarian.

A Thought for Today
Fortune is ever seen accompanying industry.—Goldsmith.

AMUSEMENTS

William Haines in golf tricks plus a series of hilarious troubles, Joan Crawford as a golfing debutante, and a love story that's told in the mazes of golf club etiquette and the game itself—these are the high-lights of "Spring Fever" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's comedy of the links, now playing at the Met theater.

The new picture is a decided novelty in production; in the first place, almost all of it was made outdoors, on the links of a famous country club and many nique expedients were necessary in filming, in a technically correct manner, trick golf shots, the technical details of different moves in the game and other material that was worked out by cameramen and golf experts to make this phase of the picture authentic.

Primarily, however, the picture is broad comedy. Haines plays a young shipping clerk whose prowess attracts the attention of his boss who happens to be a golfer. He's taken to a country club as a young millionaire whereupon his trials and tribulations begin with a comical intensity. He has more troubles to the square inch than Lindbergh has medals. Every fresh complication is a gale of laughter.

The cast is a notable one. Joan Crawford, heroine of "The Taxi Dancer," and other recent features, plays the principal feminine role, and George Fawcett, Edward Earle, G. K. Arthur, Lee Moran, Bert Woodruff, Eileen Percy and others of note are in the supporting cast.

Edward Sedgwick, who directed "Slide Kelly Slide" in which Haines was also starred, has directed "Spring Fever" with that self-same skill which has distinguished his every picture, and which made of the baseball production so notable a contribution to screen history. Even greater popularity is predicted on all sides for his new comedy epic of the golf course.

Berlin Eases Passport Rules for Americans
Berlin.—To facilitate the entry into Germany of those Americans traveling in Europe who make up their mind at the last moment to come to this country, the German passport department has tentatively instructed the principal frontier stations at Benthelm, Aix-la-Chapelle, Kehl and Basel, to allow all Americans equipped with a passport, and against whom there are no formal objections, to pass the border into Germany, even without a regular German visa.

This measure, however, is merely an experiment to continue in effect until October 30 of this year, when the authorities will determine if a sufficient number of Americans have availed themselves of this prerogative to warrant the permanent adoption of such a regulation.

Shepherding Taught in French Farm Schools
Paris.—Shepherding is becoming a science in France. A school of shepherding is operating at Rambouillet.

The school is a government institution, fostered by the ministry of agriculture. It teaches many things that the shepherds with their crooks, painted by artists and described by poets, never bothered about.

There are no picturesque costumes. Students are not judged by their ability to sing or pose. They have to study the game of shepherding with a view of making a profit on sheep. About all the romance left in the profession is the sheep dog.

PUMPKIN SHOW FARM BUREAU EXHIBIT
The Pickaway County Farm Bureau has arranged an Exhibit for the Pumpkin Show to acquaint people with the services offered to farm people of this County through this organization.

The exhibit will be housed in a tent on East Main street and will be comprised of the following exhibits: The European Corn Borer, showing the life history of this insect and the damages wrought by it in the infested areas in Ohio and other States.

A Soils Exhibit based upon the results of the Soils Testing Clinic, will give a classification of Pickaway soil types. The type of treatment necessary to give most economical results in the average Pickaway County cropping system.

The third exhibit will be a set up of the various services and the correlation of these services which are offered to Pickaway County folks through the Farm Bureau organization.

All visitors to the Pumpkin Show should take the opportunity to visit these exhibits because a practical application of the messages carried in this exhibit can be made advantageously.

Ancient Roman Kitchen Found in Great Britain
Epsom, Surrey.—Roman remains dating back to the time when the British Amazonian Queen Boadicea rose in revolt, have been brought to light near here.

Excavations on the site of the Roman villa in Ashstead wood, discovered by A. Lowther, two years ago, have shown that underneath and extending beyond the rear of the building are the walls of an earlier structure. From the manner in which it was built and the style of the material used it is considered that it was destroyed about 60 A. D., or the period of the rising of Boadicea. The latter building probably dates to the time of Hadrian, 130 D. D., and remained, to judge from the latest finds of pottery, until at least 250 A. D.

The latest discoveries include a kitchen with an oven tiled at the side, and connected at the bottom full of charcoal, an enamel bronze brooch with the design of a dolphin on it, two blue glass beads, a silver coin of Hadrian, and a small head of a swan in bronze.

TWO-THIRDS RULE

Each Democratic Convention Said To Be a Law Unto Itself.

If enough bitterness crops up in the next Democratic National Convention to refuse to give a two-thirds vote to a candidate who wins a majority, that would suffice to prevent at the outset the change in the rule suggested by Mr. Barnett, the National Committeeman from Colorado. It is his idea to start a discussion January 8, when Democratic leaders assemble in the capitol to celebrate Jackson Day, favorable to the passage of a rule by the convention permitting nomination by a majority after 10 or 15 ballots.

At present it would seem that the convention will not take the step formally; but the likelihood is that any candidate who gets, and on the succeeding ballot holds a majority, will be nominated by the delegates. This custom was broken at Baltimore in 1912, when Champ Clark got no further than a majority, but it was done on account of opposition to the Eastern organization behind Clark. Even then this could not have succeeded without the formidable leadership of Mr. Bryan and the available candidacy of Woodrow Wilson. The next convention is not likely to disclose an opposition leader with the following of Mr. Bryan. Bitterness against Governor Al Smith will unquestionably be found there, but unless a shining pillar such as Wilson provided in 1912 is discovered round which to rally—and none such is in sight—the acrimony is bound to scatter. It will probably be thoroughly diffused to prevent the nomination of a candidate with a steady majority.

Each Democratic Convention, by party fiat and custom, is a law unto itself, and it is within the power of the next one to do what Mr. Barnett, of Colorado, suggests. But if it is done it more likely will be done in spirit instead of in letter. A successful fight against the unit rule is more probable than one against the two-third rule.—New York Times.

Judge Upholds Girls' Right to Kiss Youth

London.—"It is quite natural for a girl of sixteen to reward a boy with a kiss after a bicycle ride, if she thinks fit," Judge F. E. Bradley of Lytham has ruled. "There is nothing unseemly or disgraceful in that."

A mother and daughter had summoned a next door neighbor for assault. It was stated that several boys and girls were in the street. One of the boys had his arm around the daughter and was kissing her after a bicycle ride. The neighbor, a man, passing by stopped to remark that the kiss was disgraceful. Then the trouble started. The neighbor was fined.

Chairman of the Baby Show and Parade.

Mrs. Mary G. Morris, Pickaway County Recorder and President of the Business and Professional Women's Club, has consented to act as chairman of the Baby Show and parade which will be one of the features of the annual Pumpkin Show. This parade has been held every year since the inauguration of Circleville's big Pumpkin Show and every year the entries have increased until it has become quite an undertaking to act as chairman of this division. Mrs. Morris in giving her time to this affair is acting in a public spirited way and is to be commended for so doing. There will be eleven classes of entries for this show and each class with the exception of two offers five awards. Parents who expect to enter their children in this show are urged to phone their entries to Mrs. Morris as soon as possible. It

2000 Miles Farther in 125,243 Less Minutes

THE public thinks of such trains as the "Century" and the "Chief" as being fast. They are.

But it requires over 65,600 minutes for 45 of the world's fastest trains, going in all directions from Chicago, to run 40,000 miles. And these trains get MANY fresh engines, at regular intervals, in order to make this remarkable speed.

Contrast this phenomenal performance of three Auburn fully equipped STOCK cars that ran 42,000 miles in less than 40,435 minutes (exact duplicates in every way of the Auburn cars every Auburn dealer has).

Here is an amazing record of performance, endurance and value never before approached, let alone equalled.

No change of engines for these three stock cars. No favoritism, but the hardest kind of driving, continuously, under American Automobile Association official supervision, on the Atlantic City Speedway.

To even RUN 42,000 continuous miles, at much less speed, would be a tremendous tribute to ANY automobile's efficiency and stamina. That is farther mileage and infinitely harder punishment than any three average private owners impose on their cars in a whole year's service.

But no other car has ever survived an official test of this magnitude and distance. Three Auburn cars DID it, at speeds that overwhelmingly break all records.

Not only that, but we KNOW that Auburn cars can go much farther at even FASTER speed.

The purpose of this test was not speed, altho that is sensational and establishes Auburn supreme in this respect.

The real purpose was to prove in the acid test of this proving grounds that Auburn cars ARE better designed, better built, more efficient, and more durable.

In these highly competitive days of extravagant claims, the public is entitled to the unvarnished truth about the relative value of motor cars.

It is what a car DOES and not what its builders SAY that determines VALUE.

Drive an Auburn Straight Eight and if it does not sell itself you will not be asked to buy.

SOMETIMES

It Pays To Take Star Out of Game.

That it sometimes pays to take out a star football player and replace him with a specialist in one branch of the game is brought out by Walter Eckersall, well known football expert, in a review in this week's Liberty of the 1908 Yale-Harvard game. "For nearly half an hour the two elevens tried in vain to show their superiority to the crowd," Eckersall explains. "Finally Harvard got possession of the oval on its forty-yard line.

"Ver Wiebe, who had played a wonderful game," the writer continues, "started a drive which gradually forced Yale back to its twenty-five-yard line. At this point Yale held Harvard for short gains on three downs. Suddenly the whistle of the referee was heard, and a Harvard substitute rushed to the head official and announced, 'Kennard for Ver Wiebe.'

"As he walked off the field, Ver Wiebe's head hung low. He had been the star of the game. He could not understand why he was removed. Meantime, the Harvard players knew what was expected of Victor Kennard. He was a specialized drop-kicker, and as soon as he entered the struggle the field-goal signal was called. Kennard dropped back to the Yale twenty-five-yard line and drove the ball squarely between the posts for what afterward proved to be the only score of the game."

BRING ON THE BABIES

Judging by the experience of other years it does not seem that it would be necessary to urge the mothers of Pickaway County children to enter their offsprings in the annual Pumpkin Show parade and baby show, however, the committee wishes that the list this year would exceed all previous years and would like to have every eligible child in the county entered.

The judges have not been selected but will be chosen from among the numerous Pumpkin Show visitors and every child will be given a fair chance. The ladies who will be selected to act as judges will be strangers and will not know any of the entrants. To be sure, every mother thinks her little one is the most beautiful child that was ever born and even if the judges do not think so they should have pride enough to let their neighbors and friends see the little ones in this parade.

There have been many new arrivals in the county since the last Pumpkin Show and many have not been seen by some of their friends and this would be an excellent opportunity for the proud possessor of a new baby to exhibit him or her. Too, it is selfishness of some mothers that keeps many little ones from this annual event. Don't be selfish, call Mrs. Mary G. Morris and enter your baby in the 1927 Baby Show and Parade.

Finds Women Are Ill More Often Than Men

Washington.—Whether women are sick as much as men is a question on which much light has been shed by studies recently made by Dr. Edgar Sydenstricker, statistician at the United States public health service.

Records of the illnesses of all the citizens of the small city of Hagerstown, Md., have been carefully kept for a period of more than two years. Comparison of the morbidity rates of these records show that the ratio of the illness of females of all ages to that of the males is 1.3 to 1. Boys under five are ill oftener than girls. From adolescence on, however, women are more susceptible to disease than men.

In some respects women have greater resistance than men, for in the general group of infectious diseases the female rate was 92 per cent of that for males, Doctor Sydenstricker declared.

The women's rate for sickness due to external causes, such as accidents, was only 61 per cent, but for the respiratory infections, like colds, influenza and pneumonia, it was 30 per cent higher.

First Standard Pound

The original pound weight was derived from the weight of 7,680 grains of wheat, all taken from the middle of the ear and well dried. Thus, the grain is the lowest fractional division of the pound. In the time of Henry VII 7,000 grains became the standard.

Great American

On the twentieth of January, in 1884, Robert Morris, the first great American financier, was born in England. He came to America at an early age and became an ardent patriot. During the War of the Revolution he devoted all his talents to the American cause.

Early Missionaries

One hundred years ago two men were sent from Torrington, Conn., to the first missionaries to the Hawaiian Islands, then known as the Sandwich Islands. The event was commemorated at Torrington.

The Consolation Purse

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

"WHAT makes you ask me? You know I don't know," from Polly Prim, otherwise Miss Sarah-Mary Heath, the neighborhood gossip. "Because you somehow always manage to guess mighty close to the facts," Lucy Bayley, her cross-examiner, twinkled wickedly.

"I know this much—the Negleys are claim-kin to you—they were poor as church mice before the railroads sent Old Man Negley to congress. How did he get so rich in one term?"

"Why, somebody struck oil on that old land down in Texas—I thought everybody knew that," Polly Prim interrupted.

"So he got half a million out of the air, you might say," Lucy ran on. "The lies people tell!" from Polly Prim, casting up hands.

"Mighty bad—but it's truth that really hurts," from Lucy. "And this is true—my brother's got the inside dope—a strictly private investigation shows it."

"Of course, he'll believe any lie against the Negleys, just because Arthur cut him out with Sue Gordon," Polly Prim exploded.

Lucy laughed provokingly as she shook her head, saying: "That's not the Bayley way. We take what's coming, win or lose, so long as the fight is fair—but cheating is—something else."

Lucy was just turned thirty-five, tall, handsome, audacious, the last person to be suspected of sentiment, yet it was ache of love and loss that edged her disdain of the Negleys. Susie Gordon, not yet eighteen, might have been her daughter but for a foolish quarrel in her early youth. Leon Gordon had flung away from her, mad with anger and outraged pride, rich Marcella Train had caught him "in the rebound," married him out of hand, bore him this one child—and died.

At seventeen Susie was the joy, the pride, the very life of father and grandmother, the angel of all dreams to young Tommy Bayley, Lucy's only brother. Lucy had had such joy in the prospect of Leon's grandchildren owning her blood at last that it had been a crushing blow when young Negley had made Susie's acquaintance, and seemed almost instantly to captivate her. He was college bred and city bred—Tommy a born land-lover, the moral and pattern of a fox-hunting squire of the elder time.

Lucy was to crafty-wise to permit Tommy's blazoning abroad the startling Negley news. "We'll let Polly Prim do it," she counseled, being absolutely sure that Polly Prim would. "She'll think we've told and go everywhere denying it," she said to impetuous Tommy. She sent him to Florida with money in both pockets—and an earnest request to stay there until it was spent.

Polly Prim waited a week for further moving on gossip's water—then came the faintest ripple—a line in the county paper that there might soon be startling developments in railway matters of special local interest. It set her off in full cry.

Before she had made half the round of the countryside she had started something that rolled as far as Washington, where instantly it gathered volumes as it moved. Arthur sensed the peril of it and rushed to Wake Ways, the Gordon plantation, resolved to marry Susie out of hand and whisk her away to Europe with what remained of his share in the paternal loot. But he found her inconveniently and conspicuously absent—in Florida in ward of Granny Gordon and her dear Aunt Lucy.

Arthur rushed South on the swiftest train.

No trouble whatever to trail the Bayley outfit. Tommy's welcome was something to remember, as was that of his womenkind. He had said when Arthur's telegram came: "Remember, all of you, this Negley fellow's under the harrow—maybe he deserves it, but we can't rub it in. Give him the glad hand for a space—we know he's due to get his come-uppance—after all he's human—"

"How do we know?" from Aunt Lucy twinkling maliciously.

Tommy stuck out his chin, saying: "Look at me and judge."

"No, I'm better worth looking at," Susie had shamelessly interrupted, then ran to hug her aunt.

"Oh," said that lady, "so after all I've got a little new sister—one I raised on purpose to have her suit me."

"By spoiling her outrageously," Granny Gordon said, smiling through happy tears.

Tommy grinned. "A fine job you did of it betwixt you. But I'll bear up, knowing I was born to stand trouble."

Then happiness spilled over so lavishly that even when Arthur came there was no gloom. He looked, and understood what he saw, held his tongue decently, and ended by having a gorgeous three-day flirtation with a middle-western belle. Catching them together upon his last afternoon, as the whole party sat staring at the racers-by-courtesy ornamenting the track, Tommy whispered to Susie: "Your young man has got real sense after all. Losing the prize, he doesn't disdain a consolation purse."

"Nobody would—except foolish you," Susie said, smiling though trying hard to pout.

DISCOVERS NEW BIBLICAL DATA

English Expert Finds Life of John the Baptist Among Documents.

London.—New Biblical discoveries, including a new Jeremiah Apocryphon, a new life of John the Baptist and some uncanonical psalms have been made by Dr. Rendel Harris, the well-known Biblical expert.

Doctor Harris has been working in association with A. Mingana of the Rylands library at Manchester in an intensive study of early Christian documents in Syriac. All of the documents which were collected by Doctor Mingana will be preserved in the Rylands library. The present translations, which will be published shortly, are accompanied by facsimile reproductions of the texts.

Among the manuscripts which Doctor Mingana collected and translated with Doctor Harris were two Arabic translations of the works of Serapion. Apparently Serapion wrote in Greek, but the Greek texts have long been lost. The most interesting of the Serapion finds was his biography of the life of John the Baptist which he elaborates from the canonical gospels, but he tells more of John's childhood.

It was a troubled one, for not long after his birth Herod, alarmed by the visit of the wise men, began a systematic murder of male children in Bethlehem.

Answer of Zacharias.

"And Elizabeth," the translation shows, "feared that her child might be killed like them, and she took him immediately to Zacharias in the temple and she said to him 'My Lord, let us go with our son John to some other country in order to save him from Herod the unbeliever.' But Zacharias answered and said to her, 'I must not leave the service of the temple of the Lord to go to a foreign land the inhabitants of which worship idols.' And she said unto him, 'What should I do in order to save my infant child?' And the old man answered and said unto her, 'Arise and go to the wilderness of Ain Karim and by the will of God you will be able to save your child.'"

"Now when Zacharias had said good-bye to Elizabeth and his son John, he had blessed him and made him a priest and afterwards delivered him to his mother. . . . Then she took the child and went into the wilderness in which no soul lived."

Zacharias was slain by Herod's soldiers, but John wandered in the desert with his mother, where—

"God prepared for him locusts and wild honey as food in accordance with what his mother was told about him not to let any unclean food enter his mouth."

"After five years the pious and blessed old mother Elizabeth passed away, and the holy John sat weeping over her, as he did not know how to shroud her and bury her, because on the day of her death he was only seven years and six months old."

Tells of Beheading.

Of the beheading of John, the translation continues: "When the head of John was brought before Herodias the eyes of the holy John were open and his ears were hearing as in his lifetime. The adulteress spoke with ire before the head as follows: 'O accursed one who was not ashamed to look at the king in the face and answer him. I shall cut off the tongue which used to say to the king that it was unlawful for him to marry Herodias, his brother's wife. As to the hair of your head and your beard, I shall pluck it out and place it under the foot of my bedstead.' But the head of the blessed John let the locks of its hair rise from the dish and it flew to the middle of the convivial room before the king and his high officials. In that very moment the roof of the house was opened and the head of John flew into the air."

Doctor Harris describes the life of John as translated as "a curious mixture of history and legend."

Alphonse Has Record as the Youngest King

Paris.—Although the new king of Rumania, Mihai II, son of the ex-Crown Prince Carol, is only five years of age, he is not the youngest child ever to become monarch.

According to historians of royalty in Paris, it is King Alphonso XIII of Spain, who holds this record. For Alphonso, in fact, was born king of Spain, his father having died six months before his birth.

Queen Wilhelmina succeeded to the crown of Holland when she was only ten years old.

Indian Scientist Says Flowers Fall in Love

London.—Flowers have hearts and often fall in love, says Sir Jagadis Bose, Indian scientist, who is lecturing in London.

Sir Jagadis says he hopes to prove that the present teachings of botany are far from correct. He says he can illustrate the effect of drugs on flowers and trees and show how the death of one flower may cause another to pine away and die.

Odd New Guinea Craft

The lugatols is a picturesque New Guinea craft. These odd-looking vessels are composed of from five to ten dugouts lashed securely side by side. A deck is then laid across and a superstructure built on it. There is not a nail in the whole fabric, and every part of the vessel is composed of home-grown products, from the steering paddles to the curious matting sails.

LOANS UP TO $500

Dear Sirs:—Last May I started a novelty store and bought merchandise with the $200 you loaned me. I was never in business for myself before, but I thought such a store located in my neighborhood would be worth while to any one willing to work—and I was right.

I recently had an offer of $3000 for my store that only cost me $300 to start. But I wouldn't sell for twice that amount for my business is going along fine.

Your loan of $200 was a great help to me and I want to thank you as best I can until a day when I can do more for you. Yours truly—

Many good news letters from City Loan Customers are in the mail these days.

BORAH IS DRY'S' PRESIDENTIAL HOPE

DEMANDS PARTY BACK CAUSE THAT THE ISSUE MAY BE MET

The Senator From Idaho Says In Regard To the Liquor Question, the Republicans Must Stand Behind the Amendment—He Condemns Practice of "Inspid Law and Order Plank" In Party Platforms—No Side-stepping—Looks Like Lawmaker Intends To Enter the Race For President.

Declaring prohibition still is "very much of an issue," Senator Borah announced at Washington Monday his intention to call upon the national political parties to take a definite stand on law enforcement in the presidential campaign next year.

He will speak before the New York women's committee for law enforcement which, at his suggestion, is prepared to compel "if possible, a definite stand upon the matter" by both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Senator Borah, who is mentioned as a possible Republican presidential candidate, declared in a letter to the organization, made public Monday, that "it is clear that both political parties propose to avoid anything in the way of a commitment to the upholding and maintaining of the constitution of the United States, except perhaps an insipid, meaningless generality to the effect that they believe in law and order."

"They might just as well say under the present circumstances that they believe in the ten commandments. Here is a definite and extraordinary situation. The constitution is being deliberately defied. And there are those who say it is right and proper to defy it, and thru organized public opinion to nullify it.

"If political parties are unwilling to meet that issue, if when the constitution of the United States is definitely challenged political expediency withholds support, it must be apparent to all that those who are opposed to the constitution have won out."

Mayor John W. Smith a candidate for reelection as Detroit's chief executive, Monday issued a statement to the Associated Press unequivocally indorsing earlier statements attributed to him opposing enforcement of the national prohibition law.

"I am a wet, and do not believe any sane or sensible person believes the prohibition law can be enforced in great cities like Detroit, Chicago or New York," he said. "It is about time the people of the United States realize that any attempt to enforce the prohibition law in any city will result on the breeding of hypocrisy, corruption of the police department and the employment of the meanest tactics. The whole thing is the rank est sort of a joke.

"If an attempt was made in Detroit to enforce the law it would result in the employment of snoopers, who would go around peeking in their neighbor's windows where much of the drinking is going on. The whole law is the rottenest hypocrisy. The very men who are sitting in with the Anti-Saloon League leaders and seeking their support, are drinking in their private clubs or homes.

"Enforcement of the law merely means the destruction of the effectiveness of the police department forced to turn their attention from elimination of major crime to the development of a bunch of window peepers and snoopers."

Mayor Smith is opposed in the election of November 8, by John C. Lodge, former president of the Detroit city council, who resigned from that position to become a mayoralty candidate after a petition bearing 50,000 names had been presented to him.

Lodge has made no campaign speeches or promises.

PUMPKIN SHOW WRECK.

A load of pumpkins being brought to the big show was wrecked Tuesday morning at Stevenson's crossing when the axle of the wagon broke. The northbound 8:10 traction car was delayed fifteen minutes before the wreck was cleared.

THE MARSHALL LAW FAVORED IN COUNTY

Fight on the Marshall bill has developed into a contest between the wet and dry voters of the state. Church organizations generally have gone on record in favor of the measure, the Anti-Saloon League is taking an active part in the fight for its approval, while the Grange organizations of the state always aligned with the temperate vote, is doing what it can for the voters approval. On the other hand, every agency which has been with the wet interests in previous fights are against the bill and it is said that large amounts of money will be expended to defeat the measure. Rural voters are pretty well convinced of the fact that justices of the peace should not be limited to larger cities where they have ample police protection, but should be extended to the smaller villages and precincts where the constables working out of the justice's court are the only police officials to run down bootleggers, speeders and other violators of the law. There isn't near the following against the bill as some wet leaders would make you believe.

Canton—Judges Farr, Pollmeck and Roberts of the Youngstown district court of appeals had under advisement today the appeal of Saramus A. Lengel for a new trial.

St. Clairsville—Ten prisoners escaped from the Belmont county jail early today. The break occurred about 2 a. m., in the opinion of Sheriff Hardesty who discovered the prisoners absent when he went to feed them this morning. The men sawed the bars on a second floor window, broke the glass and lowered themselves to the ground with the aid of bed clothing.

Cincinnati—A formal plea of insanity, the defense of George Remus, former king of bootleggers, in the murder of his wife, Mrs. Imogene Remus, October 6, was to be filed today with Judge Chester R. Shooks, criminal court.

Columbus—Held in jail here on a petit larceny charge, Ray Miller, 23, tried to hang himself in his cell last night. He was discovered and cut down by a fellow prisoner.

New Philadelphia—John T. Edgar clay worker has filed a suit for $15,000 damages against H. J. Bittikoff, village marshal, claiming his character had been defamed by the marshal's alleged reference to him as a "chicken thief."

Cleveland—Traffic fatalities were increased to 158 here for the year with the death of Alban Rutledge, who was run down by an automobile.

SALEM UNION HAD MEETING OCTOBER 11

Will Visit Circleville At the Home of Mrs. Gussman On Last Friday This Month.

The Salem W. C. T. U. met at the home of President Mary Harpster, Tuesday afternoon, October 11, at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Louise Morris, the second vice president, presided at the opening of the meeting, which was opened by singing The White Ribbon Rally song.

Mrs. Val Valentine of the Tarleton Union, conducted the devotionals, reading the scripture lesson and leading in prayer, all joining in the Lord's prayer. After singing "Some Glad Day," the roll was called, followed by the reading of the minutes of the September meeting.

Miss Harpster presided at the business session. The date of the meeting day was changed from the second Thursday of each month to the first Thursday of the month. It was also decided to have new calendars printed for the year. The president of the Circleville Union, Mrs. Lulu Marion, invited the Salem Union to meet with them at the home of Mrs. Gussman the last Friday evening of this month.

The Pickaway county president, Mrs. Lucy B. Price, was present and gave a fine talk; also Mrs. Abbie Gussman, Mrs. Bessie Long and Mrs. Ella Milligan gave very interesting talks concerning their work.

After a song on the victrola, "Can the World See Jesus in You?" Mrs. Anna Rice closed the meeting with a prayer.

The Union will meet at the home of Mrs. Louise Morris the first Thursday in November.

During the social hour Miss Harpster assisted by Mrs. D. W. Allen, served ice cream with chocolate dope cake and coffee.

Visitors were Mrs. Val Valentine and Mrs. George Gill from the Tarleton Union; Mrs. Lucy B. Price, county president; Mrs. Lulu Marion, Circleville, president; Mrs. Abbie Gussman, Mrs. Bessie Long, Mrs. Edith Marion and Mrs. Ella Milligan from the Circleville Union, and Miss Ada Machir, Mrs. Alice Brundige and Mrs. E. W. Hatcher, of Kingston.

CHANGE OF LOCATION

Owing to the fact that there is not enough room at the court house T. D. Krinn, amusement director, has changed the high dive act to East High street, near the corner of Court.

Twedy Brothers "The Red Heads" who do a piano and violin musical stunt will be placed on Pinkney street corner of Court.

Mrs. James E. McDonald and daughter, Ruth, of Los Angeles, California, are guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Sarah Crow.

PUMPKIN SHOW IS A KNOCKING AT YOUR DOOR

The 1927 Annual Exhibit Is Here, Bigger and Better --Look Me Over.

Columbus, Portsmouth, Lancaster and Washington C. H., newspapers are telling their readers that Circleville will stage one of the grandest fall festivals the last four days of this week.

Not only Circleville, but the whole county of Pickaway, is giving this annual show. Ever since 1902, the event has been celebrated, with the exception of the year we declared war on the Teutonic nation, so the institution is a quarter of a century old.

The directors this year have left nothing to chance, but have made extraordinary efforts to make this year's show even better than its predecessors, and are offering greater prizes in all sections.

The time of giving Pumpkin shows in the county seat of the greatest agricultural county in the state, was fixed in the third week of October for more reasons than one. Farmers are thru seeding, corn crop is garnered, and lastly the pumpkin is ripe enough to take off the vine. It is the time when the farmer and his family after a hard season's work, wants to come to town and see what his neighbor has raised, and have a good time. Other towns have had their fling of entertaining by giving fairs, and they are not jealous of our famous institution, but are glad to help it along, and tell their people to go to Roundtown and see the greatest display of farm produce that the eye has rested on in many decades.

It is the time of the year when all nature assists in painting with an artist's brush the glories of the woods. The frost fairies have been at work, the flaming red sumach has made its appearance and in its Tyrian glory. It outranks all the splendor of the artistically painted leaves of the shade trees, in the fields, yellow goldenrod in bursting rockets vie with the cardinal spires of sumach, biding flaming defiance to the dying sun. Its robes catch the reflection of the sunset fires. The autumn sweeps onward, winter will soon be with us and the Pumpkin Show is the last outing before the mantle of white covers the green. Wistfully our song birds gave a parting look to the loveliness of the colors of cardinal and gold, that cover the hillside. It's the time when nature seems at her best, the four footed denizens of the forest, have gathered in their stores for the bleak and dreary winter. Even their holidays have begun and it's your vacation time. Come in and see what the other farmer has raised and maybe it will urge you on to raise better grain hogs or cattle. Bring the boys and girls for it's their show as well as yours.

There will all kinds of amusements both free and paid. The admission to the big show is as free as the air and if you have a baby that is good looking, enter it in the parade. There are enough prizes to go around.

Bring in some corn, wheat, vegetables or fruit of the orchard and you may win. The girls may have some good looking preserves or jellies, or some fine cake or butter that may win a prize. You have just as good a chance to carry home the bacon as the other fellow, but you must enter to win. If you have a freak of nature, fetch it for there's a class for these things and it is interesting. Do not let this Pumpkin Show go by without bringing in something for exhibition.

The pride of your county, is the Pumpkin Show of Pickaway.

It gives a man a feeling of superiority to compare himself with his wife's relatives.

KLAN FLAILED

By Alabama Jury Which Indicts
45 Persons In Masked Floggings.

Luverne, Ala., Oct. 15.—Inquiry into masked violence and the workings of the Ku Klux Klan by a special grand jury ended late today with 102 indictments against 45 men charged with complicity in 20 or more lashings in Greenshow County. The grand jury also made sweeping charges that men high in the councils of the "invisible empire" were "unworthy of trust."

All indictments except one were against members of the Ku Klux Klan, and the jury, which passed a week in the inquiry, reported that with one exception all the masked lashings were committed by members of the Klan, wearing hoods and robes of the order.

DAN GARRETT

MURDER IS A YEAR OLD

One year ago, Friday night, Chillicothe was petrified with horror by the cold-blooded murder of Officer Dan Garrett. One year ago today, Montrose and John Hickman, Garrett's murderers, were hiding in a cornfield near Kilgore bridge, and evaded an organized man hunt which had been in progress over night. Garrett was shot down on East Main street by one of two men he had accosted and was in the act of searching.

The crime was fixed on the Hickman brothers through an automobile left at the scene and through the arrest of two girl companions.

They were captured in November at Point Pleasant, West Virginia, returned to Chillicothe and given speedy trials and convicted. John of first degree murder and sentenced to death and Montrose, of second degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment at Ohio penitentiary. John Hickman was electrocuted in June after his attorneys, Day and Rais, had exhausted all legal methods of saving him from the electric chair.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

WILD TURKEY

And Deer May Again Roam
Ohio Forests.

A new plan will be inaugurated in the propagation of wild turkeys at the Roosevelt preserve next year. The young turkeys will be distributed to the counties where the territory is deemed adaptable and it is hoped that they will flourish and in time permit a real hunting season for the big birds.

Ten new shelter houses for the fur bearers are now being built at the preserve, making 20 in all. Additional cages and shelter for pheasants are also being put up for the winter with about 30-foot runways.

Chief D. O. Thompson of the state fish and game division will purchase 200 head of deer to be placed in a 640 acre tract at the Roosevelt preserve in Scioto county as soon as it is fenced in with a strong wire fence nine feet high, bids for which are now being received.

The scheme for the propagation of deer is one of the most extensive ever attempted in the country and its outcome will be watched with great interest by sportsmen all over the country.

The animals will be allowed to run wild and every effort will be made not to disturb them in any way.

The section is well watered and is covered with a dense growth of forest trees and there are many open spaces for pasture.

Gets Rid of Straw Hat, but It Takes a Fire

Chicago.—Peter J. Murray of the Vagelien apartment, in Edgewater, bought a cap, and on the way home in a cab tossed his old straw hat out of the cab window. The lights were against him and a boy came rushing up. "Your hat, sir." He gave the boy a quarter.

His wife didn't like the cap, so he put it in his pocket and wore the straw hat. Crossing the river he tossed the hat in. He went home to find a squad of police at the door, bearing the hat, and his wife on the verge of hysteria in fear he had committed suicide.

The police found it hard to believe that a man who takes the trouble to write his name in a straw hat might not, on occasions, be expected to kill himself.

In an ecstasy of wrath Murray later tossed the hat out through an open window. It sailed across the court and in through another open window.

Thomas Gordon came home and found a straw hat on the floor of his home. Inside the hat he found the name of Mr. Murray.

"What were you doing in my flat?" demanded Gordon.

Murray rose up and knocked him down. The police came.

Gordon left an unnoticed cigarette smoldering on a rug. When he and Mr. Murray returned from the police station there wasn't any flat. Fire had obliterated it. The straw hat was gone, too.

Outfit That Adds Smart Note to Week-End Duds

When traveling one should always be supplied with suitable clothes. Kathi Barr, the motion picture actress, wears an outfit that adds a smart note to the week-end appearance. It consists of a box-plaited rose and gray plaid skirt, sweater of rose trimmings with the plaid material, a cape of rose trimmed in plaid and a turban of black that is close-fitting and comfortable for traveling.

Things to Know About Peltry and Fur Coats

The woman who can have only one fur coat must choose that one carefully if the large outlay is to be a wise investment. The following facts have been compiled to aid those who are now buying their winter wraps:

Russian Pony—Coarse-haired Russian pony is good for sports wear and wears quite well. Flat Russian pony is smart, but does not wear so well.

Raccoon—Good wearing fur and popular for sports wear.

Beaver—Beautiful and wears well. Suitable for sports or dress wear.

Caracul Kid and Caracul—Used mostly for dress wear since they do not wear as well as the harder furs.

Persian Lamb—Handsome, good wearing fur for every day as well as dress wear.

Squirrel—Suited to dress wear, but not for hard usage.

Mink—An all round fur. Durable and beautiful.

Leopard—Used extensively for sports or dress and wears excellently. The cheap imitations are not recommended.

Muskrat—Good for sports or dress and wears well.

Nutria—Resembles beaver and is quite durable.

Dyed Rabbit—Good for dress or sports wear, but does not stand hard, long usage.

Calfskin—Used for dress and sports wear, but is not as durable as it looks to be.

The other furs can be grouped under suitable heads:

For long, hard wear—Otter, beaver, Alaska seal, mink, skunk, fisher, raccoon, krimmer, Persian lamb, natural muskrat, dyed muskrat, Russian sable, kolinsky and leopard.

For dress wear—Ermine, marten, fox, natural or dyed squirrel, silver muskrat, nutria, American broadtail, caracul, caracul kid and rabbit.

For grace and beauty, solely—Broadtail, chinchilla or mole.

Where low price is the inciting factor—Marmot or rabbit.

For sports wear—Raccoon, natural muskrat, leopard, beaver, ocelot, elvel cat, opossum, pony, kidskin and rabbit.

Silks Must Have Weight
to Hang Effectively

Silks this fall must hang. And in order to hang effectively they must have weight. The silkworm may or may not produce this poundage. If one pays the price one may obtain a soft, heavy natural silk. If one does not care to pay the price and if wear is not a dominant factor, metal filling provides the weight. The heaviest silk ribbons almost resemble crepe marocain.

Fine Feathers Always Much Admired by Women

Fine feathers seem never to lose their attraction for the feminine taste. One of the newest ways of wearing ostrich plumes is in the form of a wide flat scarf of natural ostrich. This is almost as voluminous as a shawl and should by no means be confused with the ostrich feather bon, which is in no ways resembles. It is intended entirely for evening wear.

Aviation and Leather Coats

Perhaps the intense interest in aviation is having a bearing on fashion. At least the chrome leather coats seem likely to be popular for fall, both for outdoor athletic spectacles and for motoring. They are made with that kasha linge and closely resemble the garments adopted by aviators.

Split Back

A brown albatross broadcloth coat has a bolero cape back that is split as far up as the yoke line and shows its beige silk lining as its wearer

Erected In Sugar Grove Cemetery.

Judge E. S. Mathias of the Ohio Supreme Court, commander of the United Spanish War Veterans of Ohio, was the principal speaker, Sunday afternoon, at the dedication of the Civil War memorial at Sugar Grove cemetery in Clinton county.

The monument was erected two months ago through popular subscription in a campaign carried on by the G. A. R. and Women's Relief Corps.

The exercises were held at the cemetery with members of the American Legion, War Veterans, Boy Scouts and school organizations in attendance. The program was under the direction of the G. A. R., and its auxiliary. A parade through the village preceded the dedication proper.

PUMPKIN DISPLAY

The square between Pinckney and High streets on Court, will be given over to the display of pumpkins and squashes. The display will extend to both sides of the street and R. L. Brehmer, chairman of this display, promises that every pumpkin, squash or freak vegetable brought in will be displayed. A new item on the premium list this year is the freak vegetables and very generous prizes have been awarded. The prize for the largest display of pumpkins and squashes has been raised this year to $50 in order to remunerate the owner for his work of getting the display to the show. Another item of interest to the exhibitor is that of a separate display and separate premium award for the crooked-neck squash, which heretofore has not received much attention.

Potash Search in U. S.

Yields Good Results

Washington.—First tests by experts of the Commerce and Interior departments to determine the extent of potash deposits in the United States show encouraging results. In the face of certain handicaps, though the beds encountered "are probably not rich enough to have present commercial value," the Interior department announced.

The tests were undertaken under the $100,000 appropriation to investigate domestic potash-bearing lands with a view to making this country less dependent on foreign potash and the first core drilling operation took place on public land in Eddy county, New Mexico.

About 50 beds or groups of beds containing 2 per cent or more of potash were found between depths of 338 to 1,770 feet. It was said. The hole was 1,847 feet. Fourteen beds ranged in thickness from 1 inch to 6 feet 2 inches, and in potash content from 3.10 to 16.47 per cent.

"There is no reason why there should not come a time when we can throw all our diphtheria signs into the waste basket," says Health Commissioner Henry F. Vaughan of Detroit.

As Doctor Vaughan reiterated, everyone can be immunized against diphtheria. It is just a reasonable, ordinary precaution to be so immunized. Most adults exercise their arbitrary authority to have their children inoculated. But adults say: "Oh, that's a child's disease, I won't get it."

They are wrong, but inquire among your friends and see how many have been inoculated.—Detroit News.

PREFERS SEA TO COMMONS SEAT

Sir Guy Gaunt, British Vice Admiral, Lives on "Floating Flat."

San Juan, P. R.—From the house of commons, London, to Cocos island, some hundreds of miles off the coast of Panama in the Pacific, is two thousand miles or so, but Cocos beats commons, in the opinion of Vice Admiral Sir Guy Gaunt. Cocos, in fact, is about the nearest thing to paradise on this earth. If you want to take Sir Guy's word for it, writes Harwood Hall, in the Chicago Tribune.

And Sir Guy has seen enough of this world to know and form his own opinions. Having been at sea much of his life, it was to the sea he turned for rest after years of war strain and when he found that being a member of parliament wasn't exactly a holiday.

For almost two years now he has been at sea on a remodeled lumber schooner which he has rechristened Four Winds. He calls it his floating flat. He is still at sea and may be indefinitely.

Has Chinese Crew.

Starting from Puget sound early in 1923 Sir Guy headed down the Pacific coast. With a Chinese crew he has been much of the time on his 500-ton schooner. He is his own skipper and navigator. Eventually he sailed to Cocos island, about 200 miles west of Panama. There he lingered many months and although he has sailed all the seas and visited most of the known places on the globe, Cocos seems to hold the greatest fascination.

"I wish Gaunt was British ambassador,"

So Col. E. M. House wrote back in 1914, of Capt. Guy R. Gaunt, naval attaché at the British embassy, Washington, according to his "intimate papers."

The Captain Gaunt of whom Colonel House then wrote is now Sir Guy Gaunt, a vice admiral, scarce past fifty and retired these ten years. Instead of commanding a fleet he spends most of his time on his "floating flat."

When it was a schooner it was named the Eric. Sir Guy bought her at Vancouver, cabled his secretary to dismantle his London flat and send out his belongings. He then started in to remodel the schooner, building his floating flat to accommodate his belongings and treasures. For weeks at a time he is the only white man aboard the Four Winds. At other times he has guests a plenty.

For almost two years Sir Guy has been sailing before the four winds. Coming through the canal, most of the last winter and spring he spent in the West Indies and Central American ports. In May and June he visited Porto Rico, sailing from San Juan for Havana to dry dock before going on to Venice.

He has not written his memoirs; he says they couldn't be published, not for 50 years. But Ambassador Page and Colonel House speak of him in their memoirs and rate his activities most highly. As "Poor Old Gaunt," he is known to intimates, at least, as "Pog."

After the war Sir Guy was in the house of commons.

Goes to China for Crew.

Sir Guy has a crew of 23 Chinese, and he went all the way to China to get them. The Four Winds is a 500-ton vessel, 174 feet over all and 33 feet beam. "Something substantial under your feet, don't you know," he says. He has installed electric lights, running hot and cold water, an ice plant, built in four bedrooms 18 by 18 feet, installed four baths, and provided most of the comforts and refinements one would find in an exclusive apartment. In the lounge is a large fireplace and below in the hold there are several cords of firewood.

Sir Guy has collected many birds and has them in a special compartment which he has screened off from one end of the lounge. Other pets are about the schooner, including a Mexican squirrel.

Out on deck and lashed securely under a heavy tarpaulin is a motor which, when Sir Guy puts in port, can be swung off the ship. One of his Chinamen puts on chauffeur's livery, and there you are.

The Four Winds goes under sail most of the time, but there are two engines that will give her seven knots an hour. There is storage for 25,000 gallons of fuel and the engines use about a gallon a mile.

Fishing in the Northwest, hunting wherever game may be, a few days ashore for a little golf or motoring, then on to another port—Sir Guy seems to have no more of a schedule than that. Except, now, his most definite objective is Venice this fall.

Running away from home in Australia at ten, Sir Guy was in the British merchant service before he entered the royal navy. He sailed out of Liverpool on merchantmen and was a second mate at eighteen. His rise in the navy was rapid. In Samoa in 1899 he hoisted the American flag after it had been lowered supposedly by rebels. He was advanced for that.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Miss Sadie Hoover delightfully entertained to dinner last Wednesday at her home in Darbyville. The tables were artistically decorated with fall flowers. Covers were laid for the following guests: Miss Alice Morrow, Mrs. Charles Niles, Mrs. Charles Rife, Mrs. William Murray, Mrs. Edward Lilly, Mrs. John Neff, Mrs. Clara Tedrick, Mrs. Clarence Curtin, Mrs. Ralph Curtin and Mrs. Lee Shaner of Circleville; Mrs. Thomas Shepherd, Mrs. J. R. Hott and Mrs. George Ishman, of near Ashville; Mrs. George Bockard and daughter, Carolyn, of near Williamsport; Mrs. Joseph Hill, of Orient and Mrs. J. M. Grabill of Darbyville.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zehrung, of Tarlton, was a scene of lively activity Sunday when a large number of schoolmates and acquaintances met and in friendly converse revealed the scenes of earlier school days which binds them so closely together. A delicious oyster dinner was served at the noon hour together with other refreshments. The afternoon was spent in social converse and renewing of old friendships. They departed wishing for many more reunions in the future this being the fifth for this year. Those present were: Mrs. Marcus Will and son, Mrs. Anna Fortner, Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Warner, Elmer Helvering, Mrs. Mary Mallow, Miss Emma Stout, Circleville; Miss Lucile Aldenderfer, Tarlton; Mr. and Mrs. Orman Bright Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Orman Bright Jr., Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Jacoby and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dumm Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McManamy, Mr. and Mrs. R. Reid and daughter, Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall, Miss Beatrice, Agnes and Eleanor Marshall, of Stoutsville; Miss Elizabeth Hartman, Amanda; Mr. and Mrs. John Trone, East Ringgold; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Trone and daughter, Edna, Lancaster; Mrs. Carrie Sines, Groveport; Mrs. Robert Codner, Mrs. Anna Codner, Groveport; Mrs. Millie Raybourn, Tarlton; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Valentine and daughters, Mary and Mabel of Tarlton.

THE WHAT, WHEN AND HOW OF REMEMBRANCES... DON'T GUESS—ASK YOUR JEWELER

all, without breaching the canons of approved social practice and good form.

An engagement ring, of course! But what else, during the engagement period may an engaged man give to his fiancée—with propriety and good taste?

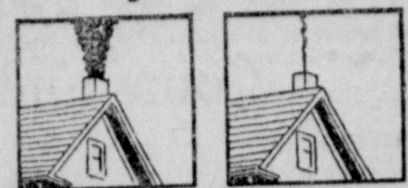

But there are other equally perplexing questions in the etiquette of gift-giving. What, for example, should a bridegroom give to his best man and ushers before the wedding ceremony?

And the bride to her bridesmaids? What are the proper anniversary and seasonal gifts to friends and relatives?

When you have a delicate gift problem to solve—don't guess—go to an expert for authoritative counsel. See your jeweler. He is past-master in the science of gift selection. His consultations are free.

There is no finer gift than an Elgin Watch. Featured in a wide style variety and sold at prices ranging from $15 to $1750.

THE PAPER FROM HOME
When I packed by portmanteau I said
I am sick of everyday grind;
Of dissension and scandal and blame;
And I'm going to leave them behind,
For a month I'll forget there is aught
Save harmony under God's dome;
But I find that I can't eat or sleep
If I don't get the paper from home.
The best minds have commended, I said,
All the books I am taking to read;
There's biography, fiction and verse;
With a pipe they'll be all that I need.
But I sit without turning a page
Of the likeliest quarto or tome.
And there's no joy at all in a smoke
If I don't get the paper from home.
Tho the sky may be cloudless, the surf
In all ways is best for a swim;
Tho a new friend I've found makes me feel
That I mean something real to him
And another new friend snuggles close
On the beach in the gathering gloom
True an truth, bo, the day is a dud
When I don't get the paper from home,

FOLKSBURG ITEMS
Folksburg is in the middle of a cool snap at the present writing, and it's been sort of trying these last few mornings getting out at daylight and feeling the sudden rush of frosty air thru your summer clothes. And personally what we can't understand is our lack of foresight that we didn't buy us an overcoat last spring when they were marked down to where we had the money.
Howard Evans tried to build a fire in his furnace yesterday morning, but when he found it was full of old tin cans where Mrs. Evans had disposed of them during the summer, why he got his hat and went off talking a good deal to himself.
Simon Sloan got a report last week from the examination he took a while ago for a postoffice job, and right away several began to ask did he make it and what grade did he get. And his grade was so low, that while his conscience kept him truthful, he told it like he meant it for a joke, and hoped people wouldn't believe him.
Some strangers were in town yesterday looking for Will Deal, one of our realtors, and for a while it looked like he couldn't be found. But they were advised to drive around slow for a spell and act like they were looking at property, and if Will was here anywhere he'd soon be up introducing himself. And they found him that way.
Mrs. Millie Hicks has been working for two or three weeks on a bed com- for she meant to give one of her nieces that got married recently. But since it's finished it looks so much nicer than she expected, that she's trying now to think of something else she can give the young couple.
Frank Pertle, who runs one of our stores, says that with the way auto- mobiles and the like are being sold these days, it's come to be second nature with people to want to trade in their old things whenever they buy something new. As for instance, he said a certain party that bought a pair of shoes the other day wanted to know would his old shoes be worth anything on the deal.
Billy boy, the four year old son of Tom Riley, came in a day or two ago tolerably proud of some new words he'd learned from the bigger boys. But he didn't get to use them only once, and he got such painful action out of them that he saw he'd made a serious mistake of some kind.
Cyrus Blake, who left Folksburg several years ago, was in town last week driving a fine automobile and otherwise bearing the marks of be- ing prosperous. His friends used to sort of feel sorry for him thinking he'd never rate very high and seemed like it gave him a good deal of satisfaction to come back and show them where they'd guessed wrong.
Alec Powers has mislaid the key to a drawer where he keeps some of his important things. His wife urged him to start in and hunt until he found it, but he said no, that instead of getting all stirred up, he'd just take it calm until he runs across it in the natural course of things.
Uncle Bill Bobbitt was talking recently that surely people don't watch little things as close as they used to. And he illustrated his remarks by saying that you don't hardly ever hear any more of a hired girl being fired because her potato peelings are too thick.
One of Miss Mabel Young's friends has been taking considerable pains to show that he is out of humor by not speaking to her for several days. But his conduct hasn't seemed to bother her very much, and she says when he goes to all that trouble, why he surely is deeply interested.
Andy Dobbins spent a good while Saturday night looking for Nath Atkins. And he finally crossed the scent of Nath's pipe on Mulberry street and followed the trail around until he overtook Nath.

Increased Demand for Yankee "Hooked Rugs"
The demand for American hooked rugs of the better kind not only keeps up but seems to increase. By American is meant Yankee rugs, not those which are imported from Canada, chiefly Nova Scotia, but those which the patient housewives of New England hooked a century ago or more. Some of these have real beauty in their colorings and patterns, and the years have softened and toned down any crudities of tint that may have been originally worked into them so that they harmonize definitely and unobtrusively in a decorative scheme.
There is something most attractive about a hooked rug, for it symbolizes the patience and the conscientiousness and the effort to bring about beauty that are part of the American her- itage of character and used as part of the decorations of a modern home they bring into it an element that is none too plenty in the turmoil of this life of the Twentieth century.—The Antiquarian.
A Thought for Today
Fortune is ever seen accompanying industry.—Goldsmith.

AMUSEMENTS
William Haines in golf tricks plus a series of hilarious troubles, Joan Crawford as a golfing debutante, and a love story that's told in the mazes of golf club etiquette and the game itself—these are the high-lights of "Spring Fever" Metro-Goldwyn- Mayer's comedy of the links, now playing at the Met theater.
The new picture is a decided novelty in production; in the first place, almost all of it was made outdoors, on the links of a famous country club and many nique expedients were necessary in filming, in a technically correct manner, trick golf shots, the technical details of different moves in the game and other material that was worked out by cameramen and golf experts to make this phase of the picture authentic.
Primarily, however, the picture is broad comedy. Haines plays a young shipping clerk whose prowess at- tracts the attention of his boss who happens to be a golfer. He's taken to a country club as a young millionaire whereupon his trials and tribulations begin with a comical intensity. He has more troubles to the square inch than Lindbergh has medals. Every fresh complication is a gale of laughter.
The cast is a notable one. Joan Crawford, heroine of "The Taxi Dancer," and other recent features, plays the principal feminine role, and George Fawcett, Edward Earle, G. K. Arthur, Lee Moran, Bert Woodruff, Eileen Percy and others of note are in the supporting cast.
Edward Sedgwick, who directed "Slide Kelly Slide" in which Haines was also starred, has directed "Spring Fever" with that self-same skill which has distinguished his every picture, and which made of the baseball production so notable a con- tribution to screen history. Even greater popularity is predicted on all sides for his new comedy epic of the golf course.

Berlin Eases Passport Rules for Americans
Berlin.—To facilitate the entry into Germany of those Americans traveling in Europe who make up their mind at the last moment to come to this country, the German passport department has tentatively instructed the principal frontier stations at Benthelm, Aix-la-Chapelle, Kehl and Basel, to allow all Americans equipped with a pass- port, and against whom there are no formal objections, to pass the border into Germany, even without a regular German visa.
This measure, however, is merely an experiment to continue in effect until October 30 of this year, when the authorities will determine if a sufficient number of Americans have availed themselves of this prerogative to war- rant the permanent adoption of such a regulation.
Shepherding Taught in French Farm Schools
Paris.—Shepherding is becoming a science in France. A school of shep- herding is operating at Rambouillet.
The school is a government institu- tion, fostered by the ministry of agri- culture. It teaches many things that the shepherds with their crooks, pointed by artists and described by poets, never bothered about.
There are no picturesque costumes. Students are not judged by their ability to sing or pose. They have to study the game of shepherding with a view of making a profit on sheep. About all the romance left in the profession is the sheep dog.

PUMPKIN SHOW FARM BUREAU EXHIBIT
The Pickaway County Farm Bureau has arranged an Exhibit for the Pumpkin Show to acquaint people with the services offered to farm people of this County through this organiza- tion.
The exhibit will be housed in a tent on East Main street and will be comprised of the follow- ing exhibits: The European Corn Borer, showing the life history of this insect and the damages wrought by it in the infested areas in Ohio and other States.
A Soils Exhibit based upon the results of the Soils Testing Clinic, will give a classification of Pickaway soil types. The type of treatment necessary to give most economical results in the average Pickaway County cropping system.
The third exhibit will be a set up of the various services and the correlation of these services which are offered to Pickaway County folks through the Farm Bureau organization.
All visitors to the Pumpkin Show should take the opportuni- ty to visit these exhibits because a practical application of the messages carried in this exhibit can be made advantageously.

Ancient Roman Kitchen Found in Great Britain
Epsom, Surrey.—Roman remains dating back to the time when the British Amazonian Queen Boadicea rose in revolt, have been brought to light near here.
Excavations on the site of the Ro- man villa in Ashstead wood, discov- ered by A. Lowther, two years ago, have shown that underneath and ex- tending beyond the rear of the build- ing are the walls of an earlier struc- ture. From the manner in which it was built and the style of the materi- al used it is considered that it was destroyed about 60 A. D., or the period of the rising of Boadicea. The latter building probably dates to the time of Hadrian, 130 D. D., and re- mained, to judge from the latest finds of pottery, until at least 250 A. D.
The latest discoveries include a kitchen with an oven tiled at the side, and connected at the bottom full of charcoal, an enamel bronze brooch with the design of a dolphin on it, two blue glass beads, a silver coin of Hadrian, and a small head of a swan in bronze.
Awkward Place for Echo

TWO-THIRDS RULE

Each Democratic Convention Said To Be a Law Unto Itself.

If enough bitterness crops up in the next Democratic National Convention to refuse to give a two-thirds vote to a candidate who wins a majority, that would suffice to prevent at the outset the change in the rule suggested by Mr. Barnett, the National Committeeman from Colorado. It is his idea to start a discussion January 8, when Democratic leaders assemble in the capitol to celebrate Jackson Day, favorable to the passage of a rule by the convention permitting nomination by a majority after 10 or 15 ballots.

At present it would seem that the convention will not take the step formally; but the likelihood is that any candidate who gets, and on the succeeding ballot holds a majority, will be nominated by the delegates. This custom was broken at Baltimore in 1912, when Champ Clark got no further than a majority, but it was done on account of opposition to the Eastern organization behind Clark. Even then this could not have succeeded without the formidable leadership of Mr. Bryan and the available candidacy of Woodrow Wilson. The next convention is not likely to disclose an opposition leader with the following of Mr. Bryan. Bitterness against Governor Al Smith will unquestionably be found there, but unless a shining pillar such as Wilson provided in 1912 is discovered round which to rally—and none such is in sight—the acrimony is bound to scatter. It will probably be thoroughly diffused to prevent the nomination of a candidate with a steady majority.

Each Democratic Convention, by party fiat and custom, is a law unto itself, and it is within the power of the next one to do what Mr. Barnett, of Colorado, suggests. But if it is done it more likely will be done in spirit instead of in letter. A successful fight against the unit rule is more probable than one against the two-thirds rule.—New York Times.

Judge Upholds Girls' Right to Kiss Youth

London.—"It is quite natural for a girl of sixteen to reward a boy with a kiss after a bicycle ride, if she thinks fit," Judge F. E. Bradley of Lytham has ruled. "There is nothing unseemly or disgraceful in that."

A mother and daughter had summoned a next door neighbor for assault. It was stated that several boys and girls were in the street. One of the boys had his arm around the daughter and was kissing her after a bicycle ride. The neighbor, a man, passing by stopped to remark that the kiss was disgraceful. Then the trouble started. The neighbor was fined.

3 Auburn Stock Cars

42,000 Miles
40,435 Min.

2000 Miles Farther in 125,243 Less Minutes

THE public thinks of such trains as the "Century" and the "Chief" as being fast. They are.

But it requires over 65,600 minutes for 45 of the world's fastest trains, going in all directions from Chicago, to run 40,000 miles. And these trains get MANY fresh engines, at regular intervals, in order to make this remarkable speed.

Contrast this phenomenal performance of three Auburn fully equipped STOCK cars that ran 42,000 miles in less than 40,435 minutes (exact duplicates in every way of the Auburn cars every Auburn dealer has).

Here is an amazing record of performance, endurance and value never before approached, let alone equalled.

No change of engines for these three stock cars. No favoritism, but the hardest kind of driving, continuously, under American Automobile Association official supervision, on the Atlantic City Speedway.

To even RUN 42,000 continuous miles, at much less speed, would be a tremendous tribute to ANY automobile's efficiency and stamina. That is farther mileage and infinitely harder punishment than any three average private owners impose on their cars in a whole year's service.

But no other car has ever survived an official test of this magnitude and distance. Three Auburn cars DID it, at speeds that overwhelmingly break all records.

Not only that, but we KNOW that Auburn cars can go much farther at even FASTER speed.

The purpose of this test was not speed, altho that is sensational and establishes Auburn supreme in this respect.

The real purpose was to prove in the acid test of this proving grounds that Auburn cars ARE better designed, better built, more efficient, and more durable.

In these highly competitive days of extravagant claims, the public is entitled to the unvarnished truth about the relative value of motor cars.

It is what a car DOES and not what its builders SAY that determines VALUE.

Drive an Auburn Straight Eight and if it does not sell itself you will not be asked to buy.

SOMETIMES

It Pays To Take Star Out of Game.

That it sometimes pays to take out a star football player and replace him with a specialist in one branch of the game is brought out by Walter Eckersall, well known football expert, in a review in this weeks Liberty of the 1908 Yale-Harvard game. "For nearly half an hour the two elevens tried in vain to show their superiority to the crowd," Eckersall explains. "Finally Harvard got possession of the oval on its forty-yard line.

"Ver Wiebe, who had played a wonderful game," the writer continues, "started a drive which gradually forced Yale back to its twenty-five-yard line. At this point Yale held Harvard for short gains on three downs. Suddenly the whistle of the referee was heard, and a Harvard substitute rushed to the head official and announced, 'Kennard for Ver Wiebe.'

"As he walked off the field, Ver Wiebe's head hung low. He had been the star of the game. He could not understand why he was removed. Meantime, the Harvard players knew what was expected of Victor Kennard. He was a specialized drop-kicker, and as soon as he entered the struggle the field-goal signal was called. Kennard dropped back to the Yale twenty-five-yard line and drove the ball squarely between the posts for what afterward proved to be the only score of the game."

BRING ON THE BABIES

Judging by the experience of other years it does not seem that it would be necessary to urge the mothers of Pickaway County children to enter their offsprings in the annual Pumpkin Show parade and baby show, however, the committee wishes that the list this year would exceed all previous years and would like to have every eligible child in the county entered.

The judges have not been selected but will be chosen from among the numerous Pumpkin Show visitors and every child will be given a fair chance. The ladies who will be selected to act as judges will be strangers and will not know any of the entrants. To be sure, every mother thinks her little one is the most beautiful child that was ever born and even if the judges do not think so they should have pride enough to let their neighbors and friends see the little ones in this parade.

There have been many new arrivals in the county since the last Pumpkin Show and many have not been seen by some of their friends and this would be an excellent opportunity for the proud possessor of a new baby to exhibit him or her. Too, it is selfishness of some mothers that keeps many little ones from this annual event. Don't be selfish, call Mrs. Mary G. Morris and enter your baby in the 1927 Baby Show and Parade.

Finds Women Are Ill More Often Than Men

Washington.—Whether women are sicker as much as men is a question on which much light has been shed by studies recently made by Dr. Edgar Sydenstricker, statistician at the United States public health service.

Records of the illnesses of all the citizens of the small city of Hagerstown, Md., have been carefully kept for a period of more than two years. Comparison of the morbidity rates of these records show that the ratio of the illness of females of all ages to that of the males is 1.3 to 1. Boys under five are ill oftener than girls. From adolescence on, however, women are more susceptible to disease than men.

In some respects women have greater resistance than men, for in the general group of infectious diseases the female rate was 92 per cent of that for males, Doctor Sydenstricker declared.

The women's rate for sickness due to external causes, such as accidents, was only 61 per cent, but for the respiratory infections, like colds, influenza and pneumonia, it was 30 per cent higher.

The list of so-called seven scenic wonder of the United States generally includes Niagara falls, Yellowstone park, Garden of the Gods, Mammoth cave, Yosemite valley, the giant trees of California and the natural bridge.

First Standard Pound
The original pound weight was derived from the weight of 7,680 grains of wheat, all taken from the middle of the ear and well dried. Thus, the grain is the lowest fractional division of the pound. In the time of Henry VII 7,000 grains became the standard.

Great American

On the twentieth of January, in 1784, Robert Morris, the first great American financier, was born in England. He came to America at an early age and became an ardent patriot. During the War of the Revolution he devoted all his talents to the American cause.

Early Missionaries

One hundred years ago two men were sent from Torrington, Conn., to be the first missionaries to the Hawaiian Islands, then known as the Sandwich Islands. The event was commemorated at Torrington.

The Consolation Purse

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

"WHAT makes you ask me? You know I don't know," from Polly Prim, otherwise Miss Sarah Mary Heath, the neighborhood gossip. "Because you somehow always manage to guess mighty close to the facts," Lucy Bayley, her cross-examiner, twinkled wickedly.

"I know this much—the Negleys are claim-kin to you—they were poor as church mice before the railroads sent Old Man Negley to congress. How did he get so rich in one term?"

"Why, somebody struck oil on that old land down in Texas—I thought everybody knew that," Polly Prim interrupted.

"So he got half a million out of the air, you might say," Lucy ran on. "The lies people tell!" from Polly Prim, casting up hands.

"Mighty bad—but it's truth that really hurts," from Lucy. "And this is true—my brother's got the inside dope—a strictly private investigation shows it."

"Of course, he'll believe any lie against the Negleys, just because Arthur cut him out with Sue Gordon," Polly Prim exploded.

Lucy laughed provokingly as she shook her head, saying: "That's not the Bayley way. We take what's coming, win or lose, so long as the fight is fair—but cheating is—something else."

Lucy was just turned thirty-five, tall, handsome, audacious, the last person to be suspected of sentiment, yet it was ache of love and loss that edged her disdain of the Negleys. Susie Gordon, not yet eighteen, might have been her daughter but for a foolish quarrel in her early youth. Leon Gordon had flung away from her, mad with anger and outraged pride, rich Marcella Train had caught him "in the rebound," married him out of hand, bore him this one child—and died.

At seventeen Susie was the joy, the pride, the very life of father and grandmother, the angel of all dreams to young Tommy Bayley, Lucy's only brother. Lucy had had such joy in the prospect of Leon's grandchildren owning her blood at last that it had been a crushing blow when young Negley had made Susie's acquaintance, and seemed almost instantly to captivate her. He was college bred and city bred—Tommy a born land-lover, the moral and pattern of a fox-hunting squire of the elder time.

Lucy was to crafty-wit to permit Tommy's blazoning abroad the startling Negley news. "We'll let Polly Prim do it," she counseled, being absolutely sure that Polly Prim would. "She'll think we've told and go everywhere denying it," she said to impetuous Tommy. She sent him to Florida with money in both pockets—and an earnest request to stay there until it was spent.

Polly Prim waited a week for further moving on gossip's water—then came the faintest ripple—a line in the county paper that there might soon be startling developments in railway matters of special local interest. It set her off in full cry.

Before she had made half the round of the countryside she had started something that rolled as far as Washington, where instantly it gathered volumes as it moved. Arthur sensed the peril of it and rushed to Wake Ways, the Gordon plantation, resolved to marry Susie out of hand and whisk her away to Europe with what remained of his share in the paternal loot. But he found her inconveniently and conspicuously absent—in Florida in ward of Granny Gordon and her dear Aunt Lucy.

Arthur rushed South on the swiftest train. No trouble whatever to trail the Bayley outfit. Tommy's welcome was something to remember, as was that of his womenkind. He had said when Arthur's telegram came: "Remember, all of you, this Negley fellow's under the harrow—maybe he deserves it, but we can't rub it in. Give him the glad hand for a space—we know he's due to get his come-uppance—after all he's human—"

"How do we know?" from Aunt Lucy twinkling maliciously.

Tommy stuck out his chin, saying: "Look at me and judge."

"No, I'm better worth looking at," Susie had shamelessly interrupted, then ran to hug her aunt.

"Oh," said that lady, "so after all I've got a little new sister—one I raised on purpose to have her suit me."

"By spoiling her outrageously," Granny Gordon said, smiling through happy tears.

Tommy grinned. "A fine job you did of it betwixt you. But I'll bear up, knowing I was born to stand trouble."

Then happiness spilled over so lavishly that even when Arthur came there was no gloom. He looked, and understood what he saw, held his tongue decently, and ended by having a gorgeous three-day flirtation with a middle-western belle. Catching them together upon his last afternoon, as the whole party sat staring at the racers-by-courtesy ornamenting the track, Tommy whispered to Susie: "Your young man has got real sense after all. Losing the prize, he doesn't disdain a consolation purse."

"Nobody would—except foolish, you," Susie said, smiling though trying hard to pout.

DISCOVERS NEW BIBLICAL DATA

English Expert Finds Life of John the Baptist Among Documents.

London.—New Biblical discoveries including a new Jeremiah Apocryphon a new life of John the Baptist and some uncanonical psalms have been made by Dr. Rendel Harris, the well-known Biblical expert.

Dr. Harris has been working in association with A. Mingana of the Rylands library at Manchester in an intensive study of early Christian documents in Syriac. All of the documents which were collected by Dr. Mingana will be preserved in the Rylands library. The present translations, which will be published shortly, are accompanied by facsimile reproductions of the texts.

Among the manuscripts which Dr. Harris collected and translated with Dr. Harris were two Arabic translations of the works of Serapion. Apparently Serapion wrote in Greek, but the Greek texts have long been lost. The most interesting of the Serapion finds was his biography of the life of John the Baptist which he elaborates from the canonical gospels, but he tells more of John's childhood. It was a troubled one, for not long after his birth Herod, alarmed by the visit of the wise men, began a systematic murder of male children in Bethlehem.

Answer of Zacharias.

"And Elizabeth," the translation shows, "feared that her child might be killed like them, and she took him immediately to Zacharias in the temple and she said to him 'My Lord, let us go with our son John to some other country in order to save him from Herod the unbeliever.' But Zacharias answered and said to her, 'I must not leave the service of the temple of the Lord to go to a foreign land, the inhabitants of which worship idols.' And she said unto him, 'What should I do in order to save my infant child?' And the old man answered and said unto her, 'Arise and go to the wilderness of Ain Karim and by the will of God you will be able to save your child.'"

"Now when Zacharias had said good-bye to Elizabeth and his son John, he had blessed him and made him a priest and afterwards delivered him to his mother. . . . Then she took the child and went into the wilderness in which no soul lived."

Zacharias was slain by Herod's soldiers, but John wandered in the desert with his mother, where—

"God prepared for him locusts and wild honey as food in accordance with what his mother was told about him not to let any unclean food enter his mouth."

"After five years the pious and blessed old mother Elizabeth passed away, and the holy John sat weeping over her, as he did not know how to shroud her and bury her, because on the day of her death he was only seven years and six months old."

Tells of Beheading.

Of the beheading of John, the translation continues: "When the head of John was brought before Herodias the eyes of the holy John were open and his ears were hearing as in his lifetime. The adulteress spoke with ire before the head as follows: 'O accursed one who was not ashamed to look at the king in the face and answer him, I shall cut off the tongue which used to say to the king that it was unlawful for him to marry Herodias, his brother's wife. As to the hair of your head and your beard, I shall pluck it out and place it under the feet of my bedstead.' But the head of the blessed John let the locks of his hair rise from the dish and it flew to the middle of the convivial room before the king and his high officials. In that very moment the roof of the house was opened and the head of John flew into the air."

Dr. Harris describes the life of John as translated as "a curious mixture of history and legend."

Alphonse Has Record as the Youngest King

Paris.—Although the new king of Rumania, Mihail II, son of the ex-Crown Prince Carol, is only five years of age, he is not the youngest child ever to become monarch.

According to historians of royalty in Paris, it is King Alphonso XIII of Spain, who holds this record. For Alphonso, in fact, was born king of Spain, his father having died six months before his birth.

Queen Wilhelmina succeeded to the crown of Holland when she was only ten years old.

Indian Scientist Says Flowers Fall in Love

London.—Flowers have hearts and often fall in love, says Sir Jagadis Bose, Indian scientist, who is lecturing in London.

Sir Jagadis says he hopes to prove that the present teachings of botany are far from correct. He says he can illustrate the effect of drugs on flowers and trees and show how the death of one flower may cause another to pine away and die.

The lagatols is a picturesque New Guinea craft. These odd-looking vessels are composed of from five to ten dugouts lashed securely side by side. A deck is then laid across and a superstructure built on it. There is not a nail in the whole fabric, and every part of the vessel is composed of home-grown products, from the steering paddles to the curious matting sails.

Dear Sirs:—Last May I started a novelty store and bought merchandise with the $200 you loaned me. I was never in business for myself before, but I thought such a store located in my neighborhood would be worth while to any one willing to work—and I was right.

I recently had an offer of $3000 for my store that only cost me $300 to start. But I wouldn't sell for twice that amount for my business is going along fine.

Your loan of $200 was a great help to me and I want to thank you as best I can until a day when I can do more for you. Yours truly—
